The Time is Now

This is our time. A time for no others, a time for all. A time like no other that has been or is to be. High school years are a special time, — a time to make lasting friendships, a time to grow mentally, physically, and emotionally. Once this time has passed, it can not be relived. Realization of this fact caused students to savor this time greatly, realizing its precious value more and more as they progressed closer and closer to that joyous and painful mecca of their high school years — graduation.

As students struggled with their academics and grew through their experiences, they became better armed to face the imminent arrival, the abrupt emergence into the jungle of the real world. Usually students' intentions were serious enough, but only the most mature of students concentrated fully on their school work. These students were rewarded with admission to some of the most prestigious universities in the country. Others, however, found the social call too enticing and spent hours, which could have been used for studying, on the phone, at the movies — perhaps at Tuesday's dollar night, enjoying afternoons at the beach, or watching MTV or other television programs with friends and family. Weekends were the epitome of non-academic activities. The weekend was a time to "kick back and relax" and plan events for Friday and Saturday nights.

After the passing of thirty-six such weekends, the time came. The year was over, the Seniors graduated, and the underclassmen looked forward to their year of supremacy. For the graduates, however, the high school years were over. It was a time for the challenge of the real world. Some alumni went away to college; some stayed in town and attended MCC, while others went to work full-time. "The Time" was not forgotten. Manatee High provided a backdrop for some of the most enjoyable, productive, and educational times yet experienced.

The Best of Times

6:30 Lazily preparing for another day, the student groggily shuts off the alarm. As the last remnants of sleep leave the body, the student makes the necessary preparations for school: a shower, breakfast, hunting for clothes, and leaving the house. The student:

- a. heads for the bus stop.
- b. waits for his or her ride.
- c. gets in his or her car.

8:00 Once the student arrives at MHS, he or she:

- a. leaves the bus.
- b. gets out of his or her friend's car.
- c. looks for a parking space.

Ah, school! Another day for lectures, notes, homework assignments and questioning the functional purpose of math — "Are we ever going to need this?" The student looks for his or her friends. Before school begins is an excellent time to:

- A. converse with friends
- B. hurriedly finish the prior night's homework.

- c. eat at the Hurricane Hut
- d. do all of the above

8:25 The bell rings. Another day at school has begun. The student moves to homeroom and settles in. Here the student is subjected to a rousing rendition of reveille, is informed of school happenings by Student Council officers Kerry Donelly and Jamie Porges, and the latest PTSA news by Mr. Campbell.

As classes in the morning proceed, the student finds himself/herself:

- a. staring at the clock.
- b. not paying attention to the teacher.
- c. diligently paying attention.

By the end of third period, stomachs begin to growl. The end of third period rolls about. In waves of hundreds, students make their way into the cafeteria.

11:20 Lunch is served. The student:

- a. decides not to wait in line.

- b. opts for a less filling alternative, the cafeteria roll.

- c. unpacks his/her own lunch.

It is now time to:

- a. enjoy lunch.
- b. converse with friends.
- c. watch others eat.

The mind can rest now that the stomach is filled.

12:50 The first of the day's last three classes begins. As this class wears on, the student:

- a. wishes the clock read 3:30
- b. daydreams of activity and relaxation after school.
- c. diligently finishes his classwork.

Each moment brings the student closer and closer to the coveted strike of 3:30 on the clock, and the bell which releases him from the monotony of the school day until the next day, or if by some miracle it's Friday, until Monday.

School Time

School time — this broad term meant different activities for each student. For most students, school was definitely more than the routine of lectures, notes, tests, and homework. Much, much more was available to the student who was willing to sacrifice some time and get involved.

Of course, every student went through similar ordinary school days. Most students took seven classes, the majority of these involving some degree of thought or application. Outside of this, though, there was an abundance of activity to participate in if one desired. The finest example of such activity of such activity was Enrichment Day. On this day, one could take part in his or her choice of service, academic, or special interest clubs. If the student desired to serve the student body, he or she could join the Class Board or become a member of Student Council; the student who desired to lead could become a class or Student Council officer. School activities were not limited to Enrichment Day by any means. Before and after school many clubs held weekly or monthly meetings. Many of the club members were involved in service projects throughout the community. Many students chose to take part in their choice of sports, representing Manatee High in interscholastic competition. Others decided they would rather represent their school as a member of the band, as a cheerleader, as a member of the Sugarcane or as a member of any of the other numerous after-school activities which kept the school alive with activity long after the last bell had rung. School time was not only a time for studies and other academic pursuits, it was also a time to serve, to get involved, to enjoy and to lead.

Spirit Time

School spirit was always in the air around campus, and it was at its' all-time strongest during football season. Students at Manatee were fortunate to have a dominant and state ranked football team which motivated extraordinary support from students. The Hurricanes always gave their fans reason to be proud, and one would be hard pressed to find a more spirited group of supporters. The PTA with the band as catalyst in creating and distributing spirit throughout the school. The band also kept the fans' spirit riding high, and the cheerleaders' rousing pep provided a big boost. The Sugarcane kept fans entertained with their spirited titles. The Fan Club, along with the band, on the other hand, did little to keep fans kept from cheering on the Hurricanes. Now respect was earned. A school had the support of its' students who always rallied behind them on either side. The many students who played football from day to day who was most popular were the ones that were the best players. The band, the cheerleaders, the students from the student body, and the faculty. All of standard bands were won over by the way we are the Manatee Marching Band.

Time To Spare

From the final bell on Friday afternoon till the first bell on Monday morning, students had the opportunity to put their studies behind them and "live it up." Weekends were times to relax and forget the pressures of school. Friends and family provided comrade for the activities which were to be enjoyed on this two day celebration — the weekend.

The great number of attractions in Bradenton and throughout Florida kept students as busy as they wished to be. Many students worked on the weekend to provide spending money for the important Friday and Saturday night activities, as well as to supplement financial needs throughout the week. Other students, when the weather permitted — which was about three-fourths of the year in this semi-tropical climate — spent their weekends lounging at the gorgeous beaches. There was, however more in town than at the beaches. The mall was the place to buy the latest fashions and the theaters kept students entertained with the latest productions from Hollywood. The nostalgic yet modern downtown area offered a variety of restaurants. The Bishop Planetarium offered laser light shows and other fascinating attractions. One could choose to travel down to the go-kart mini-raceway and live out the fantasy of drag racing on a miniature scale. Of course, one could always stop at the popular hangout the Boat Ramps. If one were lucky there would be a party on the weekend where many friends showed up and there was an opportunity to meet new people. The weekends abounded with enjoyable and relaxing events and students zestfully relished these memorable moments.

PTSA Gets Whole School Involved

Parents, teachers and students got involved in this year's PTSA. The group had one of its most successful years and created spirit throughout the school Progress is what the PTSA was about this year. Emphasizing student membership and parent involvement was an important goal they achieved. Improved relationships between parents, students, and teachers were also accented during the year.

Dances and novelty items such as Cane pride rides inside "bumper stickers," "I love the 'Canes" buttons, and desert hats were familiar items sold as fund raisers. Other items sold at the football games were Hurricane hats, stadium hats, and balloons.

During football games, spectators admired the new computer sign which flashed its words of encouragement to the Fighting Canes and incited spirit in fans. This board was financed by local merchants who supported the 'Canes.

The PTSA was sad to see the retirement from office of Mr. and Mrs. Campbell. When they first joined the organization, only $400 a year was brought into the school through the PTSA. This year, with the Campbell's help, the PTSA brought in approximately $15,000. Mrs. Bonnie Drarus, secretary of PTSA, said that the Campbell's were "the spirit behind the PTSA."

"We are proud of our group," Mr. Christie commented about the PTSA. The PTSA did a great deal for Manatee and the school. We appreciate all of the things they have done. The officers, notably Mrs. Carolyn Keeler, president, were enthused by the interest and support in the organization by all. The PTSA, founded on oil expanding relationships and boosting school spirit, made incredible progress in the past year.

Homecoming

Cane spirit prevailed during the annual homecoming celebration. All members of the student body felt the atmosphere of pride and fun combined to create homecoming week. Many activities were planned for each day of the week.

The week opened with the ever exciting Interact mud bowl on Tuesday. In this competition, Interact, Key, Anchor, and Z-Club battled it out in the mud with Key and Anchor emerging victorious.

Following the battle of the clubs, came the battle of the classes. On Wednesday the respective class boards turned out for "Almost Anything Goes." They competed in events such as Grit-n-Grin and the Toilet Paper Wrap. After the final competition, the sophomore class was victorious. In the games, however, everyone was a winner for everyone enjoyed themselves and created much school spirit.

Thursday put an end to the wars of homecoming, but showed the comraderie between every student. The bonfire provided a time during which students could cheer for the Fightin' 'Canes. All this in preparation for the upcoming game.

Aside from the after school activities were the in-school festivities. These were age day, when the student body was to dress up in various stages of life — freshmen were infants, sophomores came as toddlers, juniors dressed as middle aged people, and seniors were senior citizens. Nerd day caused more than one laugh as the student body dressed up like their favorite stereotyped nerd. Jimi Hendrix, Prince, the Fat Boys, Boy George, the Blues Brothers, and many other musical personalities were seen roaming the halls on Musical Performers' day. Last, but not least, was tourist day. This day was enjoyed by all as a time to roll up their pants, get out those straw hats, find that suntan lotion, and sport those Hawaiian shirts.

Homecoming was an enjoyable time for all, as Senior Class President Mary Kate Melton put it, "It lessens the gap between the classes, while promoting school spirit."

"Lights Out"

"Lights Out", a suspenseful comedy-thriller which depicted a terrifying mystery was performed in February for the annual school play. With a cast of eleven and four understudies, the performance was a wonderful success! Under the direction of Mrs. Peggy Gardiner, Kim Rise, and Faith Kersey, the play was a colorful interpretation of the original script.

The determination and cooperation on the parts of the cast and footlighters alike, the presentation went off very well. A beautiful set design was the product of long hours of rehearsals and Saturdays of painting. The old, gloomy Stilwell estate added much to the overall ambience of the performance. The members of the cast worked very well together, and all had a feeling of unity among them. Everyone had great ideas to contribute to their characters and many a great time will be remembered from the play.

Students' Needs Taken Care of by Administration

Deans and Guidance also aid students. School Board handles huge problems.

Heading the administrative team, Mr Wesley Choate, principal, led the student body through another successful year. While solving routine problems on campus, Mr Choate also concentrated on improving the operation of the school. The challenges of his profession were met with the aid of Mr Oscar Sanders, assistant principal of Northside and Mr Robert Crawford, assistant principal of Southside.

Northside deans, Mr Paul Palmateer and Mrs Merrie Lynn Parker, and Southside deans, Mr Jack Mackie and Mrs Maxine Thigpen, aided and disciplined students. Guidance counselors also assisted students in choosing the correct classes. The guidance office was ready each day to help with academic, personal, and family problems. Curriculum specialist, Mr William Yates, was available to alleviate doubts and answer questions concerning the academic program. The guidance team was aided by Mr Jon Vanderschouw, guidance director, while Mr H W Herring, Mr William Bishop, Mrs Lois Haines, Miss Mary Lou Schmidt and Mr James Forsell directed the student body's mental well-being.

Sonia Schork Retires after 27 years

Mrs. Sonia Schork — Our beloved English teacher, after 30 years of teaching, 27 of those spent in the Manatee County School System, retired this year to a new home in Arizona.

Mrs. Schork attended college at Syracuse University where she earned her B.A. and her M.A. in Education. After earning her Masters degree, she taught in Syracuse, New York. After 3 years there, she moved to Manatee County where she has taught at many schools in the area.

As a teacher, Mrs. Schork has learned many things from her students. The most important thing she had learned during her "education" as a teacher is that "You can't fool them." Mrs. Schork stated that she was never able to fool her students — they deserve honesty.

Mrs. Schork regards her years at MHS with fondness. It was here that she met her husband, Dona d Schork, a former Social Studies teacher, and she feels that she has been fortunate to teach at Manatee because of the "Family-type atmosphere that abounds." It has been a pleasant place to teach, and I have always been proud to be a member of the faculty. She feels that students at Manatee are very fortunate, because of the wide variety of activities, and the tradition that belongs to the school.

Mrs. Schork and her husband love the West and its history. The house where she and her husband will be living is located in an old mining town. The nostalgia of the area will allow the Schorks the opportunity to pursue favorite pastimes, and its quiet atmosphere will enable them to enjoy a peaceful retirement. The town's location in the West will give the Schorks the chance to pursue a life-long dream of travel. She will be affectionately remembered not only for her teaching, but also for her cheerful disposition and warm spirit.

Mrs. Sonia Schork

Mrs. Lynn Plunkett has been teaching at HS for the past four years and has become major addition to the English Department. Graduate of Cossa High School in Rome, Georgia, Mrs. Plunkett graduated Magna Cum Laude from Berry College. She was a cheerleader in high school and college, and sponsored the Junior Varsity Cheerleaders in 1982. She has taught at both Manatee and West Rome High School. She enjoys camping, swimming, and is an avid reader. Mrs. Plunkett also forces herself to do aerobics because she puts it, "I have a passion for chocolate!"

Mrs. Plunkett leaves with the hope of continuing her career as a teacher. She and her husband, Ron, are having a house built in Marietta, Georgia. There she will enjoy decorating her new house and also spending more time with her two daughters, Brandi and Brooke.

Mrs. Plunkett is quoted as saying, "I am very excited about returning to Georgia, and to my family and friends, however, I leave Manatee with sorrow. I have made many friends, both within the faculty and student body. There truly is a 'Manatee Magic'." I will miss each of you very, very much. I leave with fond memories." Senior Tamara Dotson also said of Mrs. Plunkett, "She inspired me to strive for perfection in my work."

Mrs. Tina Barrios is a woman dedicated to her work at Manatee. She has spent a majority of her five teaching years striving to improve the science project program. She teaches Advanced Biology, Science Research, and is the sponsor of Z-Club.

The Science Research class gives students the chance to succeed at science fairs. All members join the Junior Academy of Science and attend a science fair sponsored by the Academy. In April, Mrs. Barrios is also the chairperson for the Junior Academy of Science, and is on their committee for judging. Many members of the class advanced as far as the International Science Fair and have won there.

Since the start of the class, Manatee has dominated the County Science Fair competition. Mrs. Barrios has helped many students to enjoy science and to succeed in competition.

During her free time, Mrs. Barrios finds the time to be secretary for the Manatee Florida Foundation of Scientists. She actively participates in the Manatee County Womens League Softball. Also placed in her busy schedule is spending time with her daughter, Natasha.

Mrs. Barrios deserves much of the credit for her accomplishments, and is a valued member of the Manatee faculty.

Mrs. Lenore Schneider, teacher of the hearing impaired, had a schedule busier than most students. Upon attending the Ohio University, Lenore graduated with degrees in speech pathology and education. She has been teaching twelve years, seven of those at Manatee High. As the hearing impaired instructor, Lenore was not only a teacher to her students, but also a friend, counselor, dean, and parent. Six out of the seven periods, Lenore accompanied her students to regular classes, where she acted as their ears, either signing or directing their attention to important material. After receiving the required lessons, the students met in the little green house, where Lenore retaught the material or helped each student with his specific problem area. Often, she spent many hours at home rewriting stories or figuring out simple ways to present mathematical or scientific concepts. Sponsoring the Sign Language Club, Lenore helped hearing impaired students become aware of the hearing impaired students which occupy a special place in Lenore's picture gallery and also in her heart. Aside from school, Lenore enjoys canoeing and backpacking the Appalachian Trail. Last year, she was chosen by People to be a teacher leader on the Student Ambassador European Trip.

Cafeteria Workers Strive for Student Involvement

Students help the cafeteria staff plan meals in exchange for better lunches. New insights help the cafeteria become a better place to eat.

Even though the cafeteria workers served over 2500 students, they managed to incorporate students' opinions into menu planning. During the year, students were encouraged to make suggestions to the staff. This program allowed both the cafeteria staff and the student body to enjoy the lunches to a greater extent.

Individual students were not the only ones to aid in the improvement of the lunch system during the year; classes also had an important part of menu planning. Coach Kelly's Life Management Skills class planned several nutritionally balanced meals for the staff to prepare.

Several proposals were made to improve the lunch system for everyone. The staff introduced the idea of a Hurricane Hodge. This sandwich would be a permanent addition to the daily menu. The contents of the sandwich were decided by both upper and lower classmen. Also proposed were additions in the electric reader board in the cafeteria. Along with stating the menu, Mrs. Speas said that she would like to feature an "athlete of the day" on the sign. "It would introduce people to our athletes — not only the football players but all the athletes," said Mrs. Speas enthusiastically. "So far though we haven't submitted our request for reader board space soon enough."

Mrs. Speas felt very strongly about student involvement. She is convinced that the more students who are involved with the lunch system the better it will be for everyone. "The cafeteria is mainly for the students therefore, they should take part in making the lunch program suit their opinions of how the meals can be the best," stated Mrs. Speas.

Custodian Robert Hill, Ray Wilson, Edward Chamberlain and Birtha Hill

The custodial staff's enthusiasm is exemplified in their work.

Cleaning up after students was not the custodians' only job. Cleaning the one hundred or more class rooms and picking up litter left by students on the campus were two of the most time consuming. Their other jobs though were just as important to the school's upkeep. Much of the summer was spent mowing the stadium's field, the practice field, and the grass between the many walkways on campus. Also during the summer, the custodians cleaned the rugs, blinds, windows, and floors while awaiting the students' arrival in August. Their hard work and dedication resulted in a beautifully kept school.

One of their most unrecognized tasks was the chaulking of the football field. They however, left the chaulking of the huge hurricane in the center to dedicated Student Council volunteers. They also took on the time consuming job of cleaning the stadium after football games.

A Time to Grow

Time to learn and study. The academic side of high school life was not to be ignored. Foundations built upon education supported the studies for the future, they essentially determined upcoming successes. Scholastic offerings at Manatee High rivaled those of any school in Florida, the South, and the nation.

Students were given the option of choosing the difficulty and variety of their schedules. English could be taken on the basic, regular, advanced, double advanced, or in senior year, the advanced placement level. The AP classes gave students the opportunity to take an end of the year exam. If the score were adequate, it could qualify them for college credit. English electives included journalism classes which produced the Machoi or the 'Cane Echo, and speech and creative writing. Math classes also allowed choices of difficulty. Courses such as General Math, Liberal arts math, consumer math, Advanced Algebra 2, math analysis and AP Calculus show the wide variety of classes students could choose. Science classes such as biology and physics provided a good foundation for post graduation, or college courses. All students took the required history classes in the social studies department. Many students also chose electives in this area which included law studies, psychology, and sociology. From foreign language such as German, French, Latin, or Spanish to metal shop, from computer literacy to fashion merchandising, from personal typing to child care, from food and nutrition to drawing, from driver's ed to special ed, the various classes offered served to round and educate the students so that they would be better suited to face the world after graduation.

Successful Ideas Help Within the English Language

With new goals in mind, the English Department continues to teach communication skills

The English Department had many goals in mind for the year. The ultimate goal of the department, "to meet every student's needs," was met through a varied curriculum. Electives and activities helped to develop interest in a wide variety of subjects.

The department attempted to improve communication skills through a broad, balanced program designed to meet the needs of every student. "We always aspire for a higher quality of course content and teaching technique," stated Mr. Fortner, department chairman. There were four levels of English classes: Basic English, Regular English, English Honors, and A.P. English. In each of these classes literature, writing, grammar, and vocabulary were studied with varying degrees of difficulty.

Electives allowed students with additional interests to study areas not covered, or only touched upon, in their other classes.

Speech and drama helped students to communicate through public speaking and acting. Creative writing and journalism taught pupils to write papers from both the factual and imaginative perspectives. Other English-related electives offered were reading, test-preparation, and humanities.

In addition to the standard curriculum, students in English classes took part in other enlightening activities. The twelfth grade English, speech, and drama classes enjoyed the play Antigone performed by the Asolo Touring Theatre.

Starting its second year was the "double honors" English program. This series of classes, offered to ninth and tenth graders, was more rigorous and vocabulary oriented than the other ninth and tenth honors classes. Students were selected for the "double honors" program based on their math grades and parental approval.

Mathematics Add Challenge to Students' Schedule

Mathematics gives incentive for thought to students at all grade levels. Modernized math becomes an important part of students' lives.

The how and why of figures were explained in detail by the mathematics department. Calculations, figures, graphs, and equations were interpreted with clarity and interest for the benefit of the students' advancement.

Soon after beginning their daily math classes, students began to realize just how much there was to learn. Math skills seemed relevant in almost every aspect of their lives. The math department placed emphasis on improving all math areas this year.

Students found teachers willing to help them in any way possible. Math became easier to understand as students received help for special problems.

Mrs. Steward, an eleventh and twelfth grade teacher, encouraged students to excel in all math courses which would help them with the career they planned. Mrs. Soboleski said knowingly, "You should take as much math as possible. You may need it in the future for the use of computers. In a few years everything will be computers."

Freshmen Richard Fletcher and Doug Smith said, "It is very important in everyone's life. Math enables one to think about the future."

Learning About Yesterday for Tomorrow

Through social studies, students learned to avoid future errors by studying the past History, as found by the students participating in Manatee's social studies courses, does repeat itself. Past events have a profound effect on the outcome of present world happenings. Teachers and students of social studies pondered this theory and others while trying to establish a knowledge of current history.

The state required classes — civic (offered to freshman), world history (offered to sophomores), American history (offered to juniors), and Americanism vs. Communism (offered to seniors) — were able to fill the students' quota of hours and still keep their undivided interest.

Advanced placement classes provided a challenge for those juniors and seniors wishing to improve their knowledge of history. These courses tended to be popular and overcrowded by eager upperclassmen desiring more social studies education. At the end of the year, students were able to demonstrate their knowledge through the A.P. examination — a test designed to permit high school students to earn college credit. This test offered the students a chance to conform knowledge of history and its overall dramatic effect on the present world. History student, Christine Barber pointed out "The study of yesterday's occurrences enable students to predict the probability of tomorrow's events and to cultivate the ability to avoid future disasters. This ability can be brought about through the learning of history."

Science Proves Fundamental For Students

A wide variety of classes offers students opportunity to excel

One biological and two physical sciences were required for all students in order to graduate. A large number of courses were offered to students and this made choosing a class very difficult.

With a wide variety of courses to choose from students often took even more than the required three years of science and many college-bound students took as many science courses as their schedule would allow. Always trying to meet the students' needs, the Science Department tried to satisfy the students' desire for more science courses. This year a new course, College Zoology, was offered to students. The traditional menu of Biology, Chemistry and Physics was also offered along with many exciting classes such as Oceanography and Science Research.

"The purpose of science is" according to Mrs. Marilyn Nolan, Science Department Head, "to more or less give students an awareness of the environment and to give them the intellectual tools to reason everyday problems by the utilization of scientific method." She also stated

Science is important to high school students because it is vital for our very existence. It is the basis of reasoning and without reasoning our civilization will not advance.

An important part of science which almost all classes participated in was individual science research more commonly known as science projects. This was an exciting aspect for many students. These projects gave students the opportunity to test their knowledge and learn beyond the realm of textbooks.

Science gave students a challenge. The many different courses offered were always testing students' capabilities to reason and gave them the knowledge which would advance society in the future.

Hard-Working Group Produces Fine Publication

Small, but persistent, the Macohi staff often worked around the clock to meet deadlines

Through thick and thin, the Macohi staff managed to produce five issues of the school newspaper. With many fine articles and newsbriefs, the Macohi kept students informed and enlightened on a variety of subjects.

The staff numbered nine this year, one of the smallest staffs ever. Because of their size, they faced many problems at the beginning of the year. Many of these problems were eliminated by cutting the number of papers by two. Because the paper only came out five times, it was geared to more feature articles than to new articles — "It was hard for us to be news oriented because of our limited number of issues. Our main concern was to provide interesting features for students and teachers which recognized students who deserved recognition because of their achievements," stated Advisor Mrs. Linda Kinnan.

The staff worked hard to avoid other obstacles set before them. Long hours before school and extra time during the day helped the staff meet their deadlines. The group was incredibly hard working and made up for the lack of members. Editor Lisa Gershman motivated the staff and managed to get a twelve page paper out of a nine person staff. All of the staff, including those working on ads and circulation, were required to write for each issue.

Many of the popular sections of the paper were the regular columns. These included Manatee Madness, a very tough column written by Business Manager Angel Colonesso; Eye of the Hurricane written by talented Senior Sports Editor, Tom Phoebus; Manatee Music, written by Circulation Manager Beth Rose; and a new book review column written by Assistant Editor Rachel Hall. Other members on staff included News Editor, Cheryl Gaar; Feature Editor, Demetria Harvey; Assistant Sports Editor, Bill Bailey; and Staff Writer, Melissa Matthews.

As the year came to an end, the staff was more than satisfied with the job they had done and they had high hopes for next year. There would be many returning members of Journalism I who would add their talent to the tradition of the Macohi.

Staff Preserves Memories of a Lifetime

The large staff of the Cane Echo pool their resources and all benefit from working on the yearbook

Working diligently through the year, the 'Cane Echo' succeeded in producing a 320 page yearbook for the student body. Although there were many changes in the book and the staff was young, the group pooled their resources and were able to meet all of their deadlines.

Although inexperienced, with only seven returning members, the staff was one of the largest in years with 24 members.

The staff strayed away from many of the old standards of past books. A few of these changes included more copy, new headlines, and new type. Yet with the willingness of the staff, these changes did not cause a problem. Also, by popular demand of the student body, four blank pages were added to the end of the book for autographs.

Yearbook was taken by staff members fifth, sixth, and seventh hours. By far the majority of students took yearbook sixth hour because of many scheduling problems though, some members had to take yearbook either fifth or seventh hours. During this class time, Advisor, Miss Judy Krocke taught students basic journalism and publishing terms. Upon this foundation, Editor-in-Chief Pam Radke built the staff's skills needed to produce a fine yearbook.

A part-time addition to the staff was copy editor, Mrs. Merenda Farley. Mrs. Farley assisted with copy, and helped move work through during deadlines. Assistant Editor Chris Pomar took some of the heavy load off the editor's shoulders and was of tremendous value.

The 'Cane Echo' staff offered much for staff members. Work and play combined to provide a family-type atmosphere for the staff to work in. Each member grew through his or her experience on staff and at the end of the year had gained a sense of accomplishment not provided by any other type of activity in high school.

Languages Teach Students About World Cultures

Students' participation in activities helps with their knowledge of languages. More is learned about the languages than classes teach.

Foreign language classes continued to increase in size this year. More and more students added French, Spanish, Latin, or German to their academic curricula. These languages drew students into one of four levels and French added a fifth level.

Teachers not only taught how to speak and write the different and difficult languages, but also introduced students to the culture, politics, history, and geography of the nations. They participated in cultural experiences, such as tasting foods from the countries they were studying.

Students realized that studying languages would help in their English vocabulary and also help them if they traveled to foreign nations in the future. They also realized that languages were fun and exciting.

In April, about twenty students from each language, excluding Spanish, competed at state contests and participated in many different competitions with students from all over the state. Such competitions included grammar, vocabulary, and diction. Winners received ribbons and trophies from first to fifth place.

Second level and above classes were allowed to attend the Festival of States exhibit at the Bayfront Center in St. Petersburg. There, students learned about the cultures of nations including and other than the one they studied in their language classes.

Major Changes Bring Improvement to Art Department

With more classes offered, the Art Department looks to a colorful future.

There were many major changes in the Art Department this year. One change was the addition of three new art teachers to the faculty. All did their best to make their art classes challenging, interesting, and exciting.

Another change was the different levels of art classes offered. Art 1 was a half-year class that introduced students to the basic fundamentals of art. If students remained interested, they could go on to Art 2D and Art 3D, which taught them more studio work, including drawing still-lifes and making paper sculptures. The next level was Drawing and Painting 1, where students learned more complex studio work, like clay. After this came Drawing and Painting 2, which went into more detail than did Drawing and Painting 1. Students wishing to go to art school took portfolio. This class helped students put together a portfolio of their best drawings which they could use in the future.

None of the teachers felt that art was considered easy. Classes enabled students who were genuinely interested and had an appreciation for art receive much experience and direction as well as enjoyment.

Agriculture, An Ancient Skill That Keeps On Growing

Stressing useful agricultural skills, the Ag. class teaches future farmers.

Students who had the desire to become farmers or those who had a love for the land chose a class in agriculture. This class allowed hands on experience with outdoor work in practical crop raising and beef production. They grew their own crops and raised their own cattle and showed them at the county fair where they were sold to the highest bidders.

The class was under the direction of first year instructor, Miss Hope Harrell. There were many reasons to take a class in agriculture such as loving the land and gaining knowledge about food production, but the most popular reason was becoming a farmer someday. "If it were not for the farmer, people would not have food on the table," said Darin Rushnell in reference to becoming a farmer.

The class even had its own plot of land that they tended daily and on which they grew various crops. These efforts yielded such vegetables as cauliflower, cabbage, broccoli, bell peppers, onions, and tasty red fruit called strawberries. They were sold to various marketplaces and the funds supported the upkeep of the plot.

Manatee Moves Forward with Computers

Students Strive to Learn Basic Programming

Computers have definitely forged the way for the future. The arrival of the computer has brought the need for computer programmers. In order to meet the growing needs of technology, many schools including Manatee, offered a wide variety of computer classes.

There were two computer teachers, Mr. Scott and Mr. Gardner. Mr. Scott's class dealt with the basics of computer programming and some business applications of the computer. Mr. Gardner taught computer literacy as well as the more advanced computer languages such as COBOL and Pascal, used in A.P. Computers and computer programming.

Depending on their ambitions, many students easily adapted to the world of computers. Students tested their knowledge of the computer by creating their own programs. These computer classes gave students the hands-on experience needed to operate a personal computer.

Exercise Proves to be Beneficial

Students enjoy their time away from academics

Students were offered a wide variety of activities for their physical education classes, these ranged from football to ping pong. Students were required to take at least two credits of physical education, but it was also taken as an elective.

Many different facilities were used by the physical education classes. Indoor sports such as basketball and volleyball were played in either of the two gymnasiums. There were also many outside facilities used such as the track around the stadium and the playing field on Southside.

Students found that this necessary part of the day was challenging as well as enjoyable. Exercise gave a break in the rigorous hours of study throughout the day. Overall students had a positive attitude toward physical education.

Students Learn Correct Ways to Drive

Safe and correct driving skills are stressed to the learning driver

Many students were enrolled in the driver's education course. Some wished to develop better skills in driving while others took the course to help lower their insurance rates. One student said, "I wanted to take the course because my parents would not trust me to drive until after I took the course." Whatever the reasons were, Manatee students were enrolled in one of the few drivers ed classes in the county, as the other schools in the county dropped or planned to drop the course. One student said, "We would really be disappointed if not given the opportunity to learn to drive at school."

The two faithful teachers who made the course a success were Mr. Stephen Olsen and Mr. Gilbert Jack. For the first few weeks of class, students were taught the Florida Driver's Handbook, and they learned the basic laws of driving. The instructors and students agreed that the class was a worthwhile elective.

Shop Builds And Refines Skills.

Students learn new skills, refine old ones, and develop future job ideas.

Shop helped students refine their skills and even helped some learn about careers in metal working, electronics, and wood working. The course helped students learn patience, accuracy, and the importance of these areas in work. One student said "When I graduate I want to become a designer or architect, and I thought this course would help me decide."

One student found out that it was not the kind of job he thought it would be, "I never realized the work involved in building even little things. I am glad I took the course though, so I know how to do things right." Shop was not just a course for finding one's schedule, but was a course that helped some decide on their job futures.

Modern Classrooms Give Business New Adventures

With addition of typewriters and other machines, the business department keeps up-to-date.

New adventures came to the business department when they were relocated to the old south campus cafeteria. New offices and classrooms were designed to fit the growing needs of the business facilities. Mrs. Christie, department chairperson, was quite happy with the new layout of the offices. "The classrooms are modern and up-to-date and probably the nicest in the county," stated Mrs. Christie.

Added to the department were sixty xerox typewriters, printers, and various types of software to run their programs. Feelings were expressed about converting all of the computers to either IBM PC1s or Apples, to make the labs much more efficient. When the new library is built all the computers could have a centralized location and a new television-media studio could be built to satisfy the needs of the fashion merchandising class.

Each year the fashion merchandising class produced a modeling extravaganza of the latest fashions from a variety of sponsors — Robby's, West Coast Surfing World, Vogue, and The Fashion Warehouse — just to name a few.

Along with new facilities came a new teacher, Mr. Charles Griggy, who was responsible for teaching computer literacy, typing, and business law.

Home Ec. Provides Students with Many Opportunities

Teaching students to be healthy and wise was the goal of the Home Economics Department

Home ec provided valuable experience as well as needed information for students. Child development helped students realize how fragile babies are and how to show responsibility for them. Nutrition, sewing, and interior decorating were a few of the things students learned about in the course of the year.

Mrs. High and Mrs. Fintel, teachers of child development, had students carrying "egg-babies" around as if they were real babies. They had faces, rooms, and if the parents wanted to go out they had to get a babysitter. Family living, taught by Mrs. High, had mock weddings so students could consider their options regarding marriage and children. Kiddie Kollege was another class offered by Mrs. Fintel. It allowed students to have hands on experience with children.

Ms. Evans, food and nutrition teacher had students do real projects in class and taught food preparation and storage which is essential to a healthy life. "Our overall aim was to help individual students to be healthier and wiser consumers and better homemakers" stated Ms. Evans.

Applying art principles to the living environment of house plans and furniture arrangement was taught by Mrs. Price. Students learned homecrafts of "livening" up their present and future environments.

Clothing and textiles and co-op work program were taught by the home ec department head, Mrs. Schumaker. Co-op work programs helped in the preparation for work and budgeting. Clothing and textiles helped students to make ready-wear clothing.

Other goals home ec had, were accomplished in the form of home ec oriented clubs. Students enjoyed being in these classes and clubs and learned about many essential matters for independent and responsible living.

Ensemble Creates Great Performances

A small organization of equal instrumentation produced music on an advanced level. Wind Ensemble consisted of talented students from other courses such as A P Music, Music Theory, and other instrumental courses. The year was filled with spectacular performances because of the eclectic selection of musicians.

The short fifty minutes of class time was strictly for rehearsing and perfecting skills for upcoming performances such as the annual winter and spring concerts. The Ensemble competed at District and State Festivals and, also, had a Pops Concert which consisted of light, melodious music.

The valuable experience that will remain a memorable occasion to the class was the world premier entitled "We The People" held in February. Arthur Frackenpohl, a famous composer, conducted and composed the concert while it was performed by Singers and Wind Ensemble.

Mr. Powell really enjoyed the group. "One of our best bands in many years," was his comment.

Orchestra Competes

Under the direction of Dr. Jim Middleton, the orchestra accomplished outstanding performances. There were two performing groups, the Chamber Orchestra and the Symphony. The Concert, Symphony, and the Chamber Orchestras met during fifth, sixth, and seventh periods, respectively. When they performed at concerts and contests, the Concert Orchestra combined with the Symphony Orchestra.

The orchestras attended a contest in Naples. Both orchestras also attended the State Contest at Stetson University in April. The day after State contest, the Orchestras spent their time at the Magic Kingdom, Walt Disney World in Orlando, Fla.

The Chamber and Symphony Orchestras performed several concerts throughout the year. On March 6 both orchestras performed at King Middle School. On April 22 the orchestra had a concert to perform the music for State concert. In practicing for State contest, the Chamber and Symphony Orchestras had several before and after school rehearsals.

Voices Harmonize

The Choristers was made up of sixteen voices selected for their ability to harmonize together. The Choristers were a public relations group for the school and community. Traditionally Choristers choreograph a few numbers for the spring concert.

During the course of the year, Choristers were very busy. In addition to their Christmas concert on December 19, they were featured on Channel 40 during the Christmas season. On May 22, they held their spring concert and on March 8, Choristers went to the District Music Festival.

Choristers were directed by Mr. Forsse, and performed with great enthusiasm to everyone's delight. They showed a strong pride in representing Malvern to the community.

Girls' Ensemble Shows Promise

Girls Ensemble was a group comprised of freshman and sophomore girls who were in Concert Chorus. They were chosen at an audition because of their ability to blend their voices together.

Even though they do not receive a credit for being in Girls' Ensemble, the members performed for the sheer joy of singing for others. They performed eleven times during the Christmas holidays and during the rest of the year for the community.

Under the direction of Mr. Olson, Girls' Ensemble attended the District Music Festival on March 7. Not only did they represent Manatee at Wachula, Fla., but everywhere they went. As they performed, they showed their pride in attending Manatee and represented the school well.

Concert Chorus Develops Skills

Selected by audition, the Concert Chorus was comprised mostly of freshmen and sophomores. This intermediate level group worked on many skills including sight reading and using their voices correctly. One of the most important skills developed by the group was achieving a good choral sound. "There's a big difference between singing solo and singing with a group. You must be able to listen not only to yourself but also to the others and balance your voice with theirs," stated Mr. Garrett Olson, director.

The group travelled to Wachula, Florida on March 7 & 8 for the annual District Music Festival. They also had the opportunity to display their skills and talents by giving Christmas and spring concerts and by participating in the Superintendent's Honors Concert at the Manatee Civic Center On February 8.

Sounds of Harmony

Bedecked in their dusty-rose dresses the Girls' Chorus harmonized and vocalized with flair. The requirements of this class did not include previous experience. "The only skills I want the girls just coming into my class to have are the ability to match a pitch and a willingness to take suggestions," stated Mr. Garrett Olson, choral director.

The techniques covered in the class prepared them for advancement within the various choral groups. In the course of the year, the girls attained mastery of correct vocal usage, reading music, and sight reading.

The girls demonstrated their expertise during concerts given at some of the middle schools. They also had a chance to "show their stuff" at Christmas and spring concerts and the annual district competition.

Girls' Glee Chorus Acquires Perfection

Harmonization was well emphasized in this course of singing skills and hard work. Much preparation and practice was done to get the chorus to perform to the pinnacle of their ability. Direction under Mr. Forsell, instilled a deep affection for music, and the students soon realized that hard work did pay off. Although there were a lot of new voices, they responded very well. Exposure to choral literature also broadened their horizons.

The top-leveled group competed at two contests, District and State. The group had an Annual Christmas Concert and also performed at Baccalaureate.

The group accomplished much, and Mr. Forsell was very pleased. "It's just gratifying to see a bunch of new kids come along and work as hard as they have."

Manatee Singers Make Achievements

Under the direction of Mr. Forsell the Manatee singers perfected vocal skills and prepared for upcoming concerts. The advanced leveled choir was composed of many hard workers and big achievers. Participation and concentration were the main objectives for performing with quality.

The group consisted of sixty well-blended voices. Developing voice quality, harmonizing, and individual skills were emphasized by Mr. Forsell. The course required discipline and the students learned more than music. The mixed chorus gained knowledge and the course strengthened the Choraliers musical background.

Manatee Singers participated in spring and Christmas concerts throughout the year. Also, they performed in the Superintendent's Concert at Manatee Civic Center and the big concert for many, especially the seniors, was graduation.

Time To Excel

Interscholastic sports gave each student the opportunity to compete in his or her choice of sports. This was a time to develop physically and mentally, a time to grow, a time to be challenged. Students learned both how to gracefully accept defeat and accept victory with humility rather than arrogance. Training and actual competition allowed students to grow in maturity. They learned that by not quitting and by demanding more of themselves, that they became stronger in body and character, which later in life, would help them settle for no less than perfect in whatever endeavor they undertook.

There were many sports which students could take part in at Manatee. In the fall football was king. The students of Manatee could choose to take part in the traditionally rich and nationally recognized football program, or compete as an individual by running on the rigorous cross country team or the equally demanding swim team. These two individual sports provided a pure test of one's ability, unlike depending on other members of a team to pull their weight. The volleyball team was never short of talent and provided indoor entertainment for its many fans.

In the winter, students chose between the soccer team, which has never had a losing season, the basketball teams and the state renowned wrestling team.

In the spring, team sports offered were the strong baseball team, the constant district power, the softball team, and the largest team on campus, the track team. Individual spring sports offered were the state champion tennis team and the low-shooting golf team.

Most sports had junior varsity understudies, who were given the opportunity to compete against students their own age and prepare themselves for the challenge of Varsity competition and the chance to capture a Varsity red "M". Those who excelled in their chosen sport had the opportunity to compete at a higher level in college and the possibility of "making it" and joining the professional ranks. Regardless of whether or not the student turned professional, he or she definitely gained maturity and retained happy memories because of their time spent training, competing, and playing.

Hurricanes Blow Away Opponents

Win Second State Title in 3 Years

On a cool night in December the Manatee Hurricanes proved to the football world that they indeed deserved to be state AAAA champions. Although many skeptics said that the 'Canes lacked both depth and size at the beginning of the season, the 'Canes showed great skill and determination by proving these skeptics wrong. With their second state title in three years, the Hurricanes have planted themselves a football dynasty that will grow for many years to come.

On September 13, the 'Canes opened the 1985 campaign in Tampa against the Chamberlain Chiefs. The 'Canes showcased both their high powered offense and stingy defense by easily overtaking the Chiefs in a 56-7 route. The next week proved to be just as fruitful as the Hurricanes racked up 40 points to the visiting Miami K. Ian's 6

The 'Canes continued their dominance of Miami area teams the following week as Manatee blasted Northwestern by a 40-6 score.

As Homecoming week fell upon the campus, the Hurricanes suffered one of their two setbacks of the season in a 21-7 loss to crosstown rival Southeast. This loss only damaged the 'Canes hometown pride as they visited Merritt Island the following week and pulled out a 24-20 victory. With the first district contest only a week away the 'Canes viewed this close victory as a sign of a team that could play with state's best.

The neighboring Rams of Riverview came to Hawkins Stadium in week six, only to be sent home soundly beaten, as the 'Canes won their first district matchup of the season by a 23-10 score. Remaining at home the following week, the 'Canes played host to Pinellas Park team that went home in awe of a mighty hurricane attack that handed them a 55-0 loss. The 'Canes next traveled to Sarasota to face a tough Sailor team in a crucial district matchup. The Sailors proved to be too much as the Canes suffered a tough 21-24 defeat. The Hurricanes could only pray the following two weeks as their fate was being decided by the two Sarasota schools. The 'Canes posted easy wins over both Clearwater and Jacksonville White. Each team left the field with great respect for the mighty Hurricanes.

With the district championship to be decided between Riverview and Sarasota, the Hurricanes had an uneasy week of practice and prayer. The 'Canes only hope of a chance to win districts was if the River-

J.V. Gridiron Looks to the Future for Success

J.V. Football Proves to be Valuable Experience for Future Varsity Players

The J.V. Football 'Canes had many reasons to be proud this year. Their 6-2 record included a defeat of a Lake and Dreadnaught team that had not suffered a loss for as long as anyone could remember. With a new practice scheme this year, the J.V. squad took part in the varsity practices. Through many long hours with the varsity team the J.V. Canes grew in mental and physical senses. This evidently paid off as the Canes dominated County opponents. The losses suffered came against a tough Riverview Rams team with the games being decided in the waning moments of both contests. This experience was looked at as a valuable one due to the past success of both the J.V. and varsity programs. This year was no exception as the nucleus as well as the team exceeded strength, quickness and durability. This however was only a small part of the purpose of the football program. The growth of the young men seemed to weigh just as much as the growth of the athletes. This edition of the J.V. Canes lived up to the tough expectations of the football program of Manatee High School.

Future Looks Bright for the Freshman 'Canes

Attitude and character molded for future success at Manatee

The Freshman Football Canes proved to themselves and the school that they were a dedicated and enthusiastic football team. While compiling a 3-3 record, the 'Canes showed great promise for their future at Manatee, which should prove to be a great one. Great individual performances were turned in on both offense and defense. With Kevin Murphy proving his worth in the offensive backfield, the Hurricanes piled up many yards. Defensively Shane Johnson proved to be the staying power behind a hard-nosed and persistent defense. The long hours on the practice field seemed to be useless at times for the Freshman, but they eventually saw the fruits of their labor in the execution of the powerful force known as the Manatee Hurricane Freshman Football team.

Rockin' Hawkins Stadium Friday Nights

"Hands up high, feet down low that's the way you Gigolo . . ."

Varsity Cheerleaders worked hard to perfect their game performances so that even more enthusiasm could be cranked out for the 'Canes on the football field. The girls attended a week long summer camp at West Georgia College to perfect their form and receive new ideas for cheers. There, they earned superior and excellent ratings for their work. The cheerleaders successfully sold M&Ms to support their travels to various competitions throughout the state.

The cheerleaders were an excellent example of the ever-present, awesome Manatee spirit. Senior Captain Darr Whitfield, Senior Co-Captains Kerry Donnelly and Marci Boyas, and sponsor Brenda Alcorn enhanced the squad's style and developed and led the cheers which rocked Hawkins Stadium many Friday evenings. The junior varsity cheerleaders sponsored by Diane Forney, supported their mentors throughout the year and should carry on the tradition of fine varsity squads well. Missy Berger, a veteran of the unit, represented the cheerleaders in the homecoming court. The girls were also responsible for the spirit messages and candy the Varsity football players received on game day. Cheerleaders were always an inspiration for the fans and were the beginners of never to be forgotten cheers such as the popular "Gigolo". Speaking for the squad, Captain Darr Whitfield said, "We feel this is the best squad we've ever been on. Everyone is cooperative and gets along great! No matter what we're doing we always have fun! This has been the greatest season ever!"

District Highlights Marching Band Season

Practice pays off for Marching Band during Football season and Districts

As the Marching 'Canes took the field every Friday night, pride was displayed throughout the 192 member band. Each performance was brought out with excellence and the many hours of practice in the blazing sun was well worth it. Under the direction of Mr. Joe Powell, the Marching 'Canes kept the fans on their toes with popular musicals like "Strut", "Easy Lover", and "Out of Touch".

Fundraisers were held to raise money for the band. Cheese and sausage were sold and the annual spaghetti dinner was again a big success.

The Marching Canes received a superior rating at the annual Florida Bandmasters Association Marching Contest. The judges opinion of straight ones throughout the performance let everyone know just how talented the band was. The score was well deserved Mr. Powell stated. This was without a doubt the strongest marching band in many years. It's been a pleasure for me to work with these fine students. Everyone in the band showed great pride in its achievements.

The spotlight focuses on the Flag Corp

With a jazzier style the Flag Corp enhances half-time shows

Parading across the field, the Flag Corp presented the Hurricane colors with pride. Under the direction of Mr. McNellis and Mrs. Cade, the corp occupied a great part of the seasons' spotlight.

This past summer four honorary members participated in the Allstar Marching Band Camp held at St. Leo. These girls, Captain Dawn Cate, routine officers Cheryl Gaar and Keili Capozella, and inspection officer Gwen Markowitz, performed the latest moves at Disney World and the Bucs' exhibition game. With these new ideas, the corp's traditional military style was altered to a jazzier, color guard style, enhancing the Fall season. Practicing hard during seventh period and two days after school paid off when the spotlight hit the Flag Corp during Friday night football games.

Second semester began with enthusiasm. The corp worked perfecting their routines for the auxiliary competition. Though the Flag Corp changed their style they were highly honored by the judges for their talent, originality, and showmanship. The year ended with thoughts for the future.

Majorettes add sparkle to performances

Demonstrating various aspects of twirling, the Majorettes are honored nationally

With sparkling smiles, spectacular uniforms, and sharp routines, the Majorettes led the Marching Canes in parades and half-time shows. Practicing for perfection, the girls added splendor to all performances.

The girls' work did not cease with the end of band practice. Each girl had dedicated herself to at least eight if not twelve years of lessons with the Suncoast Twirlers. The many hours of practice, lessons, and state or national contests brought the girls, individually, numerous titles and hundreds of trophies, but as a team it won them superior recognition from the Drum Majorettes of America, Florida Bandmasters Association and the World Twirling Association. In fact, the WTA director in Ohio, who was impressed by the MHS Majorettes, opened a new category in honor of the team.

The Majorette line added excitement to performances, coordinating the music with their routines. Demonstrating mastery of their talent the girls twirled fire, pompon, ribbon, one, and two batons. Captain Debbie Colen said, "The highlight of my high school years was Majorettes. I believe that everyone should be involved in some school activity. The dedication and hard work are well worth it. I will miss the team, who have been like a second family, when I leave Manatee High."

Drill team displays outstanding talent

Dancing across the field the Sugarcanes brighten the seasons with spectacular routines

High-kicking their way into hearts of fans the Sugarcanes brightened the year's four seasons with their fast-paced routines to popular songs such as "Strutt", "Easy Lover", "The Heat Is On" and "The Magnificent Seven".

Summer was not all play for the Sugarcanes. Long before August 26th the team practiced hard, perfecting their new dance to "The Bird" for a test that would come later. This test of ability, talent, and endurance began July 16th and ended three days later. The Universal Dance Camp held at UCF put the Sugarcanes to this test. During these four days no one's step routines were learned, practiced, perfected, and then performed. Each day brought more strained muscles but with the true Hurricane spirit the Sugarcanes not only endured, but surpassed other teams with their ability, talent and spirit. The team left the camp with not only bright ideas for the approaching season, but also with a first place trophy for their original dance, "The Bird".

Dancing across the field, the Sugarcanes highlighted half-time shows during the Fall. Remembered most was the team's Homecoming dance. Dressed as cops and robbers the Sugarcanes put the "Heat On" raising the Cane spirit. The team's major fund-raiser was a fashion show. Honored at the show was Troy French, the chosen Mr. Sugarcane. Fall's finale was a superior rating at the FBA marching band contest.

Winter brought tryouts for freshmen, sophomores, and juniors. Featured at basketball games, the Sugarcanes cheered on the players. Impressed by their performance, MCC invited the team to perform at two of the Lancers' basketball games. Winter changed into Spring, bringing hard work for the team. Many hours of planning and practice were spent on the traditional Spring Show. Making their grand finale at the Miss Florida Drill Team Competition the Sugarcanes left the spot-light to return in the Fall.

Many of the members of Drill Team expressed that Mrs. Linda Boone, their sponsor, deserved a great deal of thanks for the year's accomplishments. To Captain Kristi Anderson, "Mrs. Boone was like my buddy and Drill Team, itself, was my life — rather than high school. I am going to miss it and Mrs. Boone."

Cross Country Members Pass the Test

Perseverance is key to good long distance running

Through stormy skies of gray and hot summer days, the determined cross country team continued to excel in running performance. Rigorous, lengthy, and worn were many of the courses endured by the team. "Many of us had to help hold each other up for over half a mile. We were running in mud up to our knees at one point in the race. Our times were slow because of the condition of the course, yet, the team still managed to place well overall," commented the girls' captain Carol Rohling and teammate Tracie Romine after an exhausting meet with Lemon Bay. Difficult courses were mastered by many of the long distance runners.

Persistence was the key for good long distance runners. Such perseverance was seen in the teams leading runners Joe Humphry, Fred Mack, and John Papa, for the boys, and Mary Jackson, Carol Rohling, Tracie Romine, and Janene Santos, for the girls. Standard practice for both girls and boys consisted of a warm up, a main workout, and a cool down. A new weight training program was also added to the squads' workout to help the athletes maintain their endurance levels at their highest peaks.

Both groups overall had an outstanding season. With the runners having conquered the tough terrain and having met all the physical and mental demands of the season, Coach Orehowsky stated, "It was one of our best seasons. We worked hard and I feel our good record shows it. The team proved itself to be a prestigious group of young men and women. I am really looking forward to next season."

Swimming 'Canes Gain Experience

Young Team Members Work to Achieve Their Goals. Coaches are Excited About the Team's Great Potential

The swimming 'Canes had a good season despite the team's surprisingly small size. Although small, the team gained needed skills and experience for future years. The team showed promise for the future due to the young and spirited members.

The team arrived at the first practice on August 24. Coach Barbara Mobely returned as head coach and Diane Forney was the new assistant coach. The coaches upgraded the workouts from prior years by utilizing the weight room facilities at the school as well as the pool at the Manatee Family YMCA.

The team practiced as a whole six days a week. Four of the days were spent in the pool, and the remaining days were spent in the weight room and on the track. Despite the difficult and tiresome workouts, team members pressed on with the knowledge that the team would be more successful. The weight workouts built up strength, and the running and swimming promoted speed and endurance. The workouts improved the swimmers' times and built up a competitive spirit which is a must for any strong team effort.

Coaches Mobely and Forney were extremely proud of the hard work and enthusiasm of the team. The team will move to a new pool at G. T. Bray park in '86-'87, and the coaches were confident that this move would spark a greater interest in the swimming program.

J.V. Lady 'Canes Have Great Season

Players Set and Spike Their Way to Winning Record - Basic Volleyball Skills are Stressed

The J V Lady Canes had an outstanding year with a record of thirteen wins and seven losses. Despite tough competition, the Lady Canes prevailed with their skillful sets, powerful spikes, and consistent serves. A lot of the team's dedication and hard work paid off during the matches.

The team was headed by Coach Mirandilla. Coach Mirandilla's experience and the team's respect for their coach produced a team spirit which was second to none.

Tryouts began two weeks before school. Coach Mirand Ia looked for players possessing basic volleyball skills. After the members were chosen, practice began on the first day of school. The team ran through drills to perfect digging, spiking and serving. They also had scrimmages throughout the practice season in order to improve skills. Coach Miranda's choices proved to be productive in the team's excellent season.

The J V Lady Canes worked to achieve a winning record. They practiced hard, played hard and kept their composure to pull out four straight wins at the close of the season breaking a three game losing streak. This type of steadfast determination was the key to the Lady 'Canes' smashing success in the 1985-86 season. Many of the young team will be returning next year to insure another great season.

Lady 'Canes Face Competition

Although much hard work and effort were put into practice and games, the Lady 'Canes Varsity volleyball team had a disappointing season.

The Varsity Volleyball team was exceptionally optimistic at the outcome of the season. Though faced with tough competition, all the members of the volleyball team were determined to keep their heads high.

With the assistance of Coach Cole, the Varsity team managed to win two matches against Venice High School and one victory against Southeast High School.

Unfortunately, there were only two weeks of practice before the first match of the season. The team practiced for many tedious hours to improve their skills and techniques.

The team was led by the Captain, Diane Smith, and Junior Captain, Denisa Nichell. The key players were Diane Smith, Denisa Nickell, and Elenita Cortes.

The Varsity team was very young with only three seniors, four juniors, and three sophomores. They managed to perform very well together. Elenita Cortes, a senior on the team said, "the season was quite an experience, and I will never forget it." "The team had the potential to play outstanding, but unfortunately they were not able to use it on the court," Coach replied.

Wrestlers Strive Toward Excellence

Team Members Work Hard for a Winning Season
Hard Work Pays Off with Only One Loss.

Varsity wrestlers finished their season with an excellent 14-1 record. The team consisted of many young wrestlers which gave the entire wrestling program hope for success in future years.

Wrestlers worked out six days a week. They practiced wrestling moves to improve skills and match performance while working out with weights during third period to improve strength to help with their wrestling.

Wrestling practices were very intense. Wrestlers worked up an incredible sweat trying to lose weight in order to make their weight class when they weighed in on the day of the match. They worked on moves to improve basic wrestling skills, such as take-downs and pinning.

The weight workouts were a tremendous asset to the team's success. The wrestlers went through the circuit with a partner. They did three sets at each station moving along quickly in order to work every muscle group in the body. Not only did the workouts improve strength, but they provided the team with enthusiasm and confidence in themselves as wrestlers. This confidence also gave athletes the opportunity to achieve personal goals.

The wrestling team had an excellent season. They worked hard for their success and were confident that they would have successful seasons in years to come.

J.V. Wrestlers Taste Success

Team Members Work, Learn, and Prosper.
Basic Wrestling Skills are Stressed.

The junior varsity wrestling team had a very good season. They learned basic wrestling skills and worked out to improve strength. All of these aspects provided the team with the skill to achieve a 12-3 record.

The J.V. team's intention was to teach and prepare the younger wrestlers for future years on the varsity team. As did the varsity team, the J.V. 'Canes worked out third period in the weight room to improve their strength. They also wrestled six days a week to improve their match performance.

The J.V. wrestling practices revolved mostly around learning. They worked on basic skills to improve their performance. By improving, these young wrestlers could anticipate success in the years in which they wrestle for the Varsity team. The J.V. team was a good support for the entire wrestling program by providing experience for young wrestlers planning to continue and work towards a starting spot on the varsity team in their specific weight class.

J.V. wrestling was an excellent asset to the wrestling program. The Varsity team is insured success if the J.V. team achieved its purpose in training young wrestlers and providing them with the experience they need for competition. The J.V. wrestlers were determined and impassioned with the goal of improving to the Varsity level of competition.

Freshman Basketball Instructs

Fundamentals are Basis for Freshman Program.
Players Learn Important Skills for the Future.

Fundamentals were the primary emphasis for the freshman basketball team. The team's schedule differed from previous years by having only one team instead of two. They played nine games throughout the year. Three games were played with each county school — Southeast, Bayshore and Palmetto. The games were played in the Southside gym.

The team practiced every weekday at King Middle School. The practices consisted of drills promoting speed, endurance and the basic fundamentals of basketball. The players practiced dribbling, shooting, layups, and foul shots. These fundamentals combined with conditioning drills hoped to improve the players' skill and prepare them for varsity and junior varsity levels of play.

The team was coached this year by Jim Forsell. Coach Forsell dedicated his time and effort to improve these players and prepare them for higher levels of competition giving the school a strong foundation for the teams of future years. Since the strength for the future depends on the freshmen, their sports are important.

As are all freshmen sports, freshmen basketball was primarily concerned with the fundamentals, speed and endurance. The players practiced these skills with the hope of someday competing at a higher level. This freshmen program was an excellent learning experience for young players and contributed a great deal of strength to the school's athletic program.

'Canes Look to Postseason Play

Hurricane Eve Focuses on District Crown

The Boys' Varsity Basketball Team under the leadership of fourth year coach Don Sisemore undertook this year's campaign with a relatively young squad. The Canes were also set back at the beginning of the year by the absence of players who were participants in the football Hurricane's championship season. Overcoming these obstacles was not easy for the Canes but hard work and determination paid off as the Hurricanes once again had a successful season.

Senior Jeff Anthony was a cornerstone for the Hurricanes. As a returning starter he was looked upon not only his basketball abilities but also his leadership qualities. Anthony commented, "This year has proved to be a valuable experience for me as well as for the team. I am proud to be a part of a group such as this year's Sammin' 'Canes." junior Rodney Sanders and sophomore Jeff Chapman also proved valuable to the team as they both stood out in all aspects of the game. With this nucleus of players Coach Sisemore molded the team into a fine, tuned unit that was both fun to watch and technically sound in their execution of play.

Enthusiastic fans viewing the Canes play added another element of excitement and support to each game. The Hurricanes seemed to rise when the moment was right and pull out victories when the odds seemed to be not in their favor. This was seen as a bright spot for the Canes as they entered the district tournament with an optimistic attitude which was an evident plus for the Canes throughout the season. Although some people off the campus doubted the Hurricanes ability to play at a high level Mandatee High School their dorms knew that the tenacity that comes with being a Hurricane would carry the Boys' Varsity Basketball team as far as fate would let them. This fate meant the success that has become the trademark for a Hurricanes in any aspect of sport.

Varsity Lady 'Canes Reach Maturity

The Girls' Varsity Squad Works to Produce an Outstanding Season

The past season for the Varsity Lady 'Canes was one of maturity, hard work, and surprise. The talent among the ten members of the varsity squad was well spread out. Each player had her own specific role to play and did so with pride. The willingness of the players to work together as a team helped them to grow into maturity, as well as to become a definite threat to any opposition. The Lady 'Canes pulled off two surprising upsets by beating sixth-ranked Northeast 81-76 in double overtime and Sarasota Riverview 64-61 in regular overtime. These wins earned the team the state ranking of ninth.

Senior players Kelly Bradley and Missy Cavanaugh contributed a great deal to the team. "We are glad the team learned to work together as a whole. We will feel a loss when we leave because of the close friendship shared among the members of the team."

The Lady 'Canes were lead by the experienced coaching of Steve Olsen who had this to say about the girls and the season, "They are the best bunch of kids I've had for overachievers. They didn't have a lot of basketball sense of ability. We had a way to go, but we were constantly improving. The girls accepted their roles better than any other team. We won the games we needed to win. They were gutters and hard workers. Overall, they were the most enjoyable group I've had to work with."

Pride Produces Winning Record

From start to finish, the Junior Varsity Boys' Basketball team proved to be a force to reckon with. Coach Anthony was known to be tough and demanded a lot out of his players. The end results of Mr. Anthony's coaching, as well as the willingness of the players to meet his demands, was an outstanding record of 16-3. The boys worked hard and played exceptionally well together. They were friends both on and off the court, which was important for the team's performance and stability. The five starting players for the squad were, Bobby Alar, Reggie Belamy, Rob Popp, Chris Anthony and James Yingling. The starting players were backed up by a strong bench consisting of the other six members of the team. Having felt that the boys' fundamentals were solid, Coach Anthony concentrated, during practice, on the team's game plan. Running a variety of offenses and defenses gave the Canes the winning edge they needed to insure a good season.

Youthful Team Reaches High

Despite the fact they were a young team the Junior Varsity Lady 'Canes had an outstanding season. The girls worked hard during practices, building strong fundamentals and gaining basketball sense. The J V squad finished their season with a record of 19-1. The individual members of the team worked hard and worked together to produce such an exceptional record. The J V Lady 'Canes were headed by new coach, John Dwiggens. The members of the team adjusted well to his coaching. When asked about his feelings toward the girls and the season, Coach Dwiggens replied, "They are very unselfish. I have high expectations for next year."

The three sophomores, Tammy Lynch, Karen Svabeck and Rachel Huelsman were great contributing factors to the young team. They provided good leadership both on as well as off the court. The girls had this to say about the past season, "We had a lot of fun. All of us got a chance to play. We are looking forward to next year."

Running Canes Improve Performance

Support and cooperation are beneficial to improve record

Slow and painful were two adjectives used to describe the beginning of the season for the Varsity Track team. The team as a whole did not have the depth it had in the past. It was up to the returning members of the first string to set a good example for the younger athletes coming up. As the season progressed, however, the team came to life.

The girls' squad was fairly well rounded. They had a good mix between the field events and the running events. The top runners for the girls were Michelle Oliveira, Carol Rohling, and Janene Santos. The leaders in field events were Traci Tallmadge and Angel Colonesso. The boys' team was weak in sprints with the exception of Amir Graves. In order to win, the boys had to concentrate on the field events and middle to long distance runnings. The leading runners for the boys were Fred Mack and Todd Montanus, while Matt Andrus and Trey Walker lead the field events.

Being such a diversified sport, it was difficult for the coaches to give individual attention to every event everyday. "We could always use more coaches," commented headcoach Eric Brown. The members of the team cooperated with the coaches, and with each other to produce a finishing record they could be proud of.

Kicking 'Canes Dominate Area

The young and wounded team fought their way to yet another county title.

Under the experienced leadership of tri-captains Tommy Norment, Scott Parizo, and Robert Cuhane, the young but talented soccer team won a fifth straight county championship. This season, however, was not quite as easy as the previous ones. The competition improved, and the 'Canes were forced to fight for each win. Their winning season definitely did not come easily. Tough brakes and injuries to key players prevented the Hurricanes from enjoying success as much as their potential allowed, forcing players inexperienced in high school competition to step up and give it their best. This early education should keep the team strong in years to come. This, though, did not mean that the team was not successful, as they came up with impressive victories over tough teams from Sarasota, Bayshore, Southeast, and Cape Coral.

Coach Rene Mirandilla received a hand this year from graduates Jeff Nelson, who worked with the high-powered offense, and Gary Polly, who worked with the goalkeepers, and the winningest Junior Varsity Soccer coach in Manatee history Woody Candish In characterizing his team Coach Mirandilla commended the team's toughness and their refusal to quit He also was impressed with their togetherness desire, and heart Mirandilla named Norment, Parizo, Culhane, Charlie Norment Terry O'Sullivan, Chris Pomar, Mike Musolino, Pete Schamberger, and John Gigliotti as his top players. Of these nine five will be returning to next year's strong team These players will be aided by players who moved up from the successful junior varsity this year The strongly coached junior varsity players enjoyed a fine season Made up mostly of freshmen, these young kickers learned much from their travels to St Petersburg and Tampa and will surely keep the winning tradition of Manatee soccer strong in the future

Canes Prevail on Diamond

Experience and Depth
Play Major Role

In his second full year, head coach John Carlock, looked toward the season with a certain optimism that has become a trademark for all Hurricane athletic teams. With a team heavily dependent on seniors, the season looked bright for the Varsity 'Canes. Senior Brook Wallace, a second year starter, stated "We have a lot of returning starters this year that will, hopefully, give us an experience that will make the team a winner. Everyone seems to have the right attitude, a winning one, and we should be able to play with anyone in the state."

A positive attitude was the key as the Hurricanes posted early season wins by scores of 18-1, against visiting St. Petersburg Gibbs, and 22-0 versus Clearwater Catholic. Perennial power-houses Sarasota and Riverview did not impose such a threat as in years past. The 'Canes were not to be intimidated by their rich baseball history, as senior Brent McGary, a second year starter stated "Although they were good, we think we are better and we should prove to be a tough team for anybody, not just Sarasota and Riverview."

With depth and experience in most positions a plus, the 'Canes looked to the season with a hope and determination that should prove to catapult the Hurricanes to the district title. As Senior Jim Doyle said "This team promises to be better than most people expect. With our sound defense and explosive offense we should create quite a stir in the district standings and playoffs." With such a positive attitude the Hurricanes seemed to be on their way to bringing success home to Manatee in the form of very hard fought district baseball crown.

J.V. Baseball Plays to Learn

Paying to gain experience and a chance to join on the varsity squad, the Junior Varsity Baseball Canes survived a tough schedule. The squad went against teams from other countries such as Sarasota, and Charlotte, as well as teams from Manatee County.

Coached by volunteer coach, Mr. David Moates of the Anna Maria Community Center, the junior varsity team started their season well and had a strong showing in the county tournament.

The team closed its season after learning the basics of baseball, such as the proper way to hit and field the ball. The time in junior varsity baseball was not wasted for the skills they learned helped them prepare for varsity baseball.

Golfing 'Canes Swing into Action

With several new members, the golf team looked forward to a promising season. These new players were good, and after much practice they were able to improve their game and lower their scores.

The golf team also received a new coach, Don Barlow, who was assisted for a short time by Coach Mike Knowles. They all met for practice at the Manatee County Golf Course where they learned new skills and developed them to improve their game.

The new team members played an excellent season including several tournaments where the 'Canes finished well.

Swinging Lady 'Canes Play to Win

The Lady 'Canes softball team had a good season. It was a young team consisting of mostly freshmen. The team focused on improving skills in order to be victorious in their games.

The team members worked on all of the important aspects of softball during the practices. They worked on fundamentals to improve game performance and conditioning to improve overall ability and strength. They practiced skills such as base running, hitting, and fielding both outfield and infield. Through practicing, the team hoped to improve their performance therefore reducing the number of errors.

The team was coached by Mr. Olsen. Coach Olsen has coached the team for previous years and has a good deal of experience in training, helping, and improving young players. With good coaching and many young team members, the team felt confident that they would be successful in years to come.

Tennis Teams Do The District Shuffle

Practicing long hours after school and giving it their all each and every match, the boys' and girls' tennis teams worked hard to fulfill their pre-season goal of repeating as district champions. This was a task which would not be easily obtained, however, as the defending state champion boys' team had to overcome the loss of four seniors from last year's team, and the girls top five only carried one senior. The boys did have returning as an All-American for his senior year, Trevor Kronemann, who led the boys team with his awesome play and winning attitude. Their top players — Kronemann, Jeff Staab, Tom Westberry, Mike Landry, Steve Bovio, and Anil Inalsingh — could compete with any team in the state. Similarly, the girls' line-up of Chandra Howard, Lori Gustafson, Michelle Rose, Janet Jauschneg, and Christy Azbell was able to defeat the best of teams in the tennis-rich Sarasota-Bradenton area. Senior Christy Azbell summed up the year for both teams by saying "I feel that even though the teams are relatively young, we have matured greatly, and really come together as two of the toughest teams in our region."

Meeting Time

A time for involvement. Participation in any of the various service and special interest clubs gave students a better feeling about themselves and a broader outlook on life. Many students chose to become members of a service club. These clubs worked for numerous community groups and their causes. Students had a better feeling about themselves after donating their time to help those who were less fortunate—the poor, the homeless, the abused, or the elderly who had no one to care for them. Special interest clubs nurtured and developed students' curiosity and interest in numerous activities.

One did not need to search long for such a club at Manatee High. Service clubs popularly joined by students were Key Club, Interact, Anchor, Z-club, Nike, Sertees, and Junior Civitan. Special interest clubs included the Audio-Visual Club, Manatee Mariners, Photography Club, Sign Language Club, Art Club, Aviation Club, Backgammon/Chess Club, Endangered Species Organization, Footlighters, Future Homemakers and Teachers' Associations, Foreign Exchange Club, and the Guitar Club. Religious oriented clubs included the Fellowship of Christian Athletes and Meditations Club. Academic interests could be satisfied by such clubs as the French, Spanish, or German clubs, the Lanier English Club, Science Club, Societas Latinas, the History Club, the National Honor Society, and the A-Team. Whatever the student's interest, there was almost always a club to fulfill their desire or need.

Future Leaders Make Progress

Efficiently organizing and sponsoring student activities and raising school spirit were goals which the Student Council accomplished in grand fashion. The Council not only played a major role in student life, but also made up a vital part of the school's clubs. Many of the school's club officers were chosen for the fourth period class. Aside from the class, Student Council was made up of representatives from every homeroom. These students sold victory ribbons to their homerooms and acted as liaisons for their classmates—keeping them abreast of happenings in the Council.

Victory ribbon sales were one example of the spirit created by these energetic students. Another example of spirit were the painted signs hanging in the main hall every week which showed support for all sports. Other examples of spirit were the blood drives, the unmeasurable support for the football team, Winter Homecoming, and the epitome of school spirit, Fall Homecoming. Of this festive week, Co-Chairmen David Linton and Chris Marino said, "With hard work and dedication by Student Council Homecoming was a week long party enjoyed by all at Manatee. We were proud to be involved in such an exceptional event."

When asked to characterize the Student Council, their sponsor, Mr. John DeForge could not have enough to say about his hardworking group of students. He found their dedication to be impressive, and their spirit to be beyond measure. In selecting hardworkers, Mr. DeForge cited the entire fourth period class, Kerry Donnelly, Michelle Jolly, Amy Mattina, Lori Sicard, Andrea Hammer, Jamie Porges, Shern Olson, Darri Whitfield, Marci Boyas, Leslie Sutton, Christy Azbell, Shelly Nepper, Jennifer Sklerov, Terry Helm, David Linton, and Chris Marino for their work and efforts. Vice President Kerry Donnelly summed up the year with, "Student Council has accomplished many things. The people have been great to work with and their dedication has been superb!" Many Council members shared this sentiment, and only wished the year was longer so that even more could have been accomplished in this truly fantastic year.

Inter-Club Council

The Inter-Club Council was a vital part of club activities. It was formed to keep the activities of each club scheduled to avoid conflict with other clubs. The organization consisted of the vice-presidents from each club, and together they planned and decided on dates for various activities such as fund raisers, socials and civic services. Sponsors, Mrs. Merrie Lynn Parker and Mr. Sterling Forrester helped the club representatives agree on the dates and kept the plans of the clubs running smoothly. Because of ICC, each club was able to do what they wished without interfering with the other clubs.

Club Gives Pride

Project Pride involved a group of students who defined their own purpose each year and concentrated on improving the school said Pam Radtke. The club was a self-sufficient organization that picked its own members. There were 200 nominations of students by teachers and 70 became members. The Executive Board were the directors of the group and they were chosen by the members.

The main activity the club participated in was the workshop on leadership given by Dr. S. Verman of USF. The workshop lasted two days and gave members leadership skills they can use to help improve the school and its environment.

Summing up the year, Chris Pomar said Project Prince worked hard to find ways to keep the students happy and solve any problems they might have encountered in school. Certainly, the biggest project and most fun we had was the workshop

Food for Thought

Every day of the year students' attitudes and appetites were aided by two very important school organizations. One inspired them to do their very best throughout the day, and the other made many improvements with the lunch menu and program.

Many hours were spent during Enrichment periods to provide hundreds of enlightening thoughts and inspirational poems for the students to enjoy and reflect on during their day. During their meetings Mrs. Dianne Evans and Demetra Harvey selected appropriate devotions for each day.

Yac, Youth Advisory Council, met every first and third Wednesday at 8:00 to discuss their opinions and those of other students about the lunch program and menu. Sometimes they taste-tested new items.

These clubs deserve the recognition of their fellow students and teachers for a job well done. Their contributions to the school went far beyond "The call of duty" and helped the school encourage students to live up to their full potential.

A. V. Action

Throughout the year, the Audio Visual Club performed many beneficial services for the school. Their taping of sports events aided coaches and athletes in improving techniques. They did more than just tape the athletic events; their video equipment and expertise enabled them to tape the auditions for the school play. Sponsor, Mrs. Peggy Gardiner, said, "The auditions were held the same way as in previous years. The time they consumed, however, was much less. I was able to watch each person's performance several times which made callbacks much easier." "I hope to tape next year's auditions too," continued Mrs. Gardiner.

Mr. Booth was very proud of his group. "The only requirement I have of my crew is the willingness and ability to work," he stated with pride.

Bridging the Gap

Students who joined Sign Language Club were sensitive, caring people who wished to include in their circle of friends students who had difficulty communicating stated Mrs Schneider. The club taught sign language and promoted friendship between the hearing and the hearing impaired.

Mrs Schneider President Karen Gardner and Vice President Linda Scott were busy planning events during the year. Some of these events included a float in the Homecoming parade and a grant to the Center. On December 17, they had a Christmas party, and in June they sponsored a pizza party for the seniors.

Every member received a book of signs and worked on them. Not only did they learn them but also perfected their use of them.

A-Team Competes

The A-Team was sponsored by Ms. Farley and consisted of highly academic students who all had a love for competition. The members competed against Bayshore Southeast, and Palmetto schools in County matches. The twelve members were divided into three teams of four students in each team. Each team had members specializing in humanities, mathematics, science, social science, and English. After competitions at the County level, a four-member All-County team was selected to participate in the State meet at Disney World.

For some questions the members needed a knowledge of French or Spanish to solve a math problem. For a section of one competition, knowledge was required in popular contemporary art and music. All involved came away from the meets with new knowledge and a strong desire to excell in academic competition.

Lanier English

Lanier English Club had a prosperous year with the production of the fourth Manatee Masterpieces. Under the sponsorship of Mr. Neff and Ms. Farley, the staff collected, sorted, and discarded entries to make the best publication ever.

The dedicated worked long hours deciding upon the most appropriate works from entries submitted by the student body. They felt that the club had done the best job ever with the fourth edition, and they have new ideas to insure the future success of the publication. The members have worked hard on the design and have chosen every piece of art work to best illustrate the book.

"Manatee Masterpieces keeps improving through the years. It is a great feeling when the book comes out at the end of the year, the satisfaction is too great for words to explain", said Kim Boggess.

Future Careers

Diversified Cooperative Training DCT was a club that enabled students to get a headstart in the job market. Mr. Larry Scott took over the position of Mr. Roy Baither, the former club sponsor who retired. Although new at the job, Mr. Scott was able to contribute his time and effort to allow the students to hold parttime jobs while still attending classes in the morning.

By selling Hickory Farm Products, the club raised money which let them attend the many conventions. The success of the organization was largely due to the participation and determination of everyone involved. Said Nick Cardi, "DCT allowed me to hold a job I'd otherwise be unable to. It really helped me in my career."

Careers Shaped

Cooperative Business Education, also known as CBE, was a club that enabled students to attend school half of a day and work part time in business offices around the community. Meeting for class during fourth, under the supervision of Ms Barbara Zachman, prepared the students in the various secretarial skills. The only requirement for the class was having had one year of typing.

Selling Tom-Watt products helped to raise money for the district and state competitions that are held annually. Many students also attended the "Employer Appreciation Banquet," which was held to thank the employers of the community for the experience. The students needed this experience to fulfill their knowledge of the working world.

Fashion with flair

Fashion Merchandising, a new division of DECA, was a new addition to the enrichment day. According to Mrs. Christie, the club sponsor, the group did well even though they were new this year. Initially, Fashion Merchandising was a class offered first and third periods, but due to the increasing interest of the students a club was formed as a division of DECA, Distributive Education Clubs of America. Fashion Merchandising or DECA is a non-co-op division dealing specifically with the buying and selling of apparel.

The students had a candy sale and a gram sale during the year, enabling them to travel to a fashion mart. Guest speakers on fashion and costuming highlighted the year's meetings. The year's finale was a fashion show where the students displayed their flair for fashion.

DECA acquires worldly skills

DECA Co-op brought students in touch with the complex world. Students were introduced to the world of marketing and distributing by Mrs. Christi, the club sponsor.

DECA Co-op, Distributive Education Clubs of America Co-operative, was not only a club but also, a class and a job. Members of DECA Coop were eleventh and twelfth grade students that were especially selected as hard working dedicated individuals.

Second period each day, Mrs. Christie instructed the group on such subjects as advertising, producing, distributing, and marketing. After fourth period the students left their high school life for jobs in the business world. The area businesses such as Sears and Winn Dixie said that they enjoyed working with these dedicated students.

Throughout the year the club was busy sponsoring various events. During December, the club sponsored a breakfast for its members. They also sponsored a foster child during Christmas. In the spring they gave their annual "Employer Banquet" increasing the rapport between employer and employee.

DECA had two fund-raisers, in which they sold Tom-Watt products and Hickory Farms cheese and sausage. These fund-raisers enabled the club to participate in district contest, state contest in Orlando and national contest in Atlanta, Georgia. The students' hard work at school and on the job brought honors to the club throughout the year.

HERO

HERO, Home Economics Related Occupations, gave students needed knowledge and background skills for their future careers. Students were enrolled in both the club and the class where they received classroom training and job skills to help them prepare for their future. The job areas stressed dealt with food, clothing, and child care. The club met during enrichment period A, and the class met during first period everyday. The students went to their jobs after fourth period. They worked in places such as Beal's Department Store, McDonald's and Winn Dixie.

At the beginning of the year the club held a welcome banquet for all new members. With guidance of sponsor, Mrs. Schumaker, the club had a very rewarding year, while students planned their future.

Worldly Friends

As an international club, American Field Service, was a learning experience for members, especially those interested in travel or foreign cultures. At each meeting a member was selected to present a different country to the club. The presentations included speeches on the country being presented, slides, movies, or pictures of the area, and a native food dish. These presentations were an enjoyable way for interested students to learn about other cultures and expand their knowledge on foreign affairs. The members enjoyed the presentations, as one member stated, "The club was fun and an exciting learning experience."

The members of AFS worked hard to raise money for the club through candy sales and exam-o-grams. The club used the money to pay for their international dues and to help sponsor students' travel to a foreign country and participate in the AFS foreign program.

Extraordinary Homemaking

Throughout the course of the year, the members of FHA demonstrated many outstanding leadership qualities. They made many new friends both within the club and with other FHA members throughout the state.

Under the direction of Mrs. High and President Tiffani Kemper, the club achieved many goals. Among these were carnation, calendar, and candy sales. The profits were used so members could attend district and state leadership conferences. At these conferences, girls from the club participated in sewing, interviews, literary works, storytelling, garnishing, and drama.

The club's community involvement was also very outstanding. It participated in two Special Olympics Bowl-a-thons and also in cleaning the homes and yards of the elderly in the community.

An active member of FHA, Cherie Gaines stated, "It is an honor and pleasure to be in a club that has demonstrated such high leadership qualities."

FHA-TALK Learns

Helping students learn more about children and how to deal with them was what FHA-TALK (Future Homemakers of America Teenagers Loving Kids) was about. The members worked with children of all ages and types. They also provided service to different community organizations that needed their help.

Some of the activities they held were a car wash, fall and spring Special Olympics Club Foster Children, and Family Fun Festival. These activities helped the club members and others greatly.

The club was successful with all they did. They achieved their goals and bettered themselves while helping others.

Future Teachers

The Future Teachers became more active in educational matters. They helped teachers do the common things associated with teaching such as cleaning chalkboards, grading papers, and running errands. For the future it was planned to have all of the teacher aides become full Future Teacher Club members. With a change like this, the teacher aide would become an even more useful member of the education system.

Back to School Night was a major activity for the Future Teachers in that they were guides for the parents and accompanied them to classes on both campuses. They also had an Easter Party for kids in the area. This was a big success because the club members were able to be with small children and gain experience for their future.

They also had a car wash to raise funds to support a scholarship for a student going into the education field.

Active Farmers

The Future Farmers of America participated in many interesting activities. They took field trips to farms and dairies around the county. They also took part in competition from the club strict to the state level. The competition was in the areas of live stock production, dairy, horticulture and forestry judging. They also took part in leadership competitions.

They were also very active in school sponsored events. Their Homecoming float took first place in the club float contest. They even helped to decorate the cafeteria to promote school spirit.

There were also many agriculture related projects that the Future Farmers participated in. They raised a steer, a few swine and grew crops for sale to individuals throughout the county with the money going to fund agricultural improvements.

Mike Stivers, club president, summed up the year by saying, "We had a very profitable and successful year, and we are very pleased with Miss Harrell, our new advisor."

Mariners Set Sail

Throughout the year Manatee Mariners entertained their nautical fancies by both talking about their sailing hobbies and discovering the fun of sailing. They took short boating trips on weekends to Spoil Island located in the Anna Maria Sound. Before these trips Mr. Levan, Mariners' club sponsor, discussed the basic water safety rules the members would have to observe. The weekend trips were not all fun and games. "There's a lot of hard work that has to be done before there is time for fun" said Mr. Levan. For instance, cleaning the boat and rigging the sails.

At their club meetings the members discussed future trips, which were organized by the officers. Early in the year the club held a successful fund raising candy sale. The requirements for joining the Manatee Mariners were to have a C average and a love for the water and outdoors. The majority of the members were ninth and tenth graders, but all grades could get in on the fun.

Ham Radio Stars

During the year, Amateur Radio Club members took communication one step further by contacting other Ham radio enthusiasts around the U.S. and the entire world. Their meetings consisted of trying to contact places such as Africa, Australia, and even the good old U.S.A.

Before they could join the club, Mr. Boone required all prospective members to know Morse Code and have some knowledge of electronic theory. If a member wanted some extra time with the equipment, he could go in before or after school and improve his expertise. The profit from the club's fund raiser helped to buy more equipment for them to use.

"Amateur Radio Club has been a unique experience. Each enrichment period I had the opportunity to talk to 'hams' all over the world. Having spoken to people with different nationalities and cultural backgrounds has made me a more dynamic person," said Eric Ballon, a member of the club.

Vini Vidi Vici

Societas Latina, the Latin Club, was very active during the year. Early in the year they sponsored a dance and near the beginning of the second semester they held a Roman Banquet for which the participants dressed in costumes of the times.

During the year the Latin Club mainly concentrated on sharpening their Latin abilities to prepare them for the Certamen competition. The district competition was held in February at Bayshore High School. The finalists in the district competition went on to the state competition. The participants in state traveled to Orlando for two nights over their spring break to compete.

Because of the necessity to prepare for the contest, the meetings were held only for those members planning to try out for the contest. The other members were excluded from all enrichment period meetings. These members were informed of upcoming fund raisers or activities in class or by way of friends participating in the Certamen events.

The officers Mike Mack - president, Lara Farnholt, vice president, Rob Smith treasurer, and Ed Preston, secretary helped Mrs Stevens, Latin Club sponsor both initiate special activities and carry them out.

The activities at the meetings consisted first of a short discussion pertaining to upcoming events sponsored by the club. The rest of the time was spent by Mrs Stevens quizzing the members on their knowledge of Latin trivia. Although the members of Latin Club spent much time studying for the competition, they managed to have a great time participating in the many other things the club sponsored.

Español

Spanish club was dedicated to a better understanding of the Spanish language and culture. The sponsors, Mrs. Charlene Crawley, and Mrs. Linda Boone, helped the students learn and perfect the Spanish language, while they developed new interests in the Spanish culture through slides and movies of the Spanish lands. These areas were being stressed in hopes that the most aggressive members would be able to take the National Spanish Exam.

The club, again in 1985, sponsored foster children for Christmas which has been a success in the past. In February, they had a Spanish candy sale to help raise money for the club's activities. The club also planned a carnation sale for St. Patrick's Day. "All in all we are looking forward to a bright future for our club," stated Justine Lashley.

Spanish Honor Society began meeting in January, when they welcomed new members. The members were scholars from Spanish I, II, and III. These members also took an active roll in the Spanish club. "We are interested in the Spanish cultures and we want to help others get involved in Spanish too," stated one member.

Le Club Francais

In keeping with club standards, French club members participated in many functions with gusto. The club sold Swiss chocolates, rather than the traditional bon bons, in the fall, and in the spring held a flower sale.

The proceeds from these fund raisers helped alleviate the cost for a year end banquet, a scholarship — awarded to the most deserving senior and a trip to Orlando for "Le Congres de la Culture Francais en Floride," the annual state competition.

As usual the club came back successful from the year's main event, "Le Congres Overall, French club had a prosperous year and according to Mrs. Murray, sponsor 'We see a bright future on the horizon.'

Der Deutsche Klub

"To increase interest in and awareness of the German language and culture," was the main goal of German Club, according to Mr. Robert Boone, sponsor. In accomplishing this goal, the club prepared for and participated in the German State Competition.

In order to alleviate the expenses of this and other activities, which included a year end trip to Walt Disney World and a banquet in April, the club held several fund-raisers. They sold Christmas candles in the fall, hosted an Oktoberfest dance and sold Gummy Bears in the spring.

"German Club's a pretty low key club," claims club president Joanna Sutton. Even so, they had an exciting year. Due to the guidance and wisdom of Mr. Boone they made it through their second year successfully, finding they had learned much and made many lasting friendships.

Anchors Away!

Working throughout the year, Anchor Club managed to serve the school and community in a variety of ways.

The year started out on a very positive note. Twenty new members were selected after a prospective members brunch at which old members screened hopeful Anchor members. After members were inducted at both an informal and formal induction, the girls started to get down to business.

Homecoming had the girls working hard to instill spirit in the club and in the school. Homecoming corsages were sold, which turned out to be a successful fund-raiser. Also during homecoming, members faithfully worked on their prize winning float "Sleigh the Seminoles." For the rest of the football season members continued to boost spirit by supplying food for the press box at home games, and in November each member made a special lunch for a football player.

During the holiday season, Anchor provided food and clothes for needy families. Also, the holiday season was welcomed by members who held a progressive dinner the social for the season.

The most exciting point of the year came in March when the club's annual fashion show was held. Most of the members were actively involved with the show, and many even were chosen to model for the show.

Traditional events rounded out the year. There was the Father-Daughter Cookout, the Mother-Daughter banquet and the end of the year trip. "Anchor Club was one of the most rewarding experiences of my high school years. It allowed me to experience working side by side with my peers for the sake of my school and my community," stated member Kelly Powers.

Interact Excels

Interact, under the leadership of sponsor Tom Orehowsky and President Terry Heim strived to maintain their proud heritage as a club dedicated to serve their school and community. Among the many service projects that Interact accomplished throughout the year their dedication to the fight for African Famine Relief stands out as one of the most projects in the club's history.

Service was viewed as a job that although sometimes unfavorable, was a vital part of each member's growth as an individual within the group structure. Through service projects such as the upkeep of the Manatee Children Services and their involvement in the Special Olympics, the members of Interact viewed the world in a way that they might not have seen it without their involvement in the club. This matured each individual to a point that they could not have reached without their dedicated involvement with Interact.

Participation was the key as Interact strived for the best in everything they did. Terry Heim's goal for the year was: "to remain the top service club of the community and the West Coast District of Florida. With these goals in mind Interact strived for the excellence that past clubs have achieved."

Z-Club Zooms Ahead

Under the direction of Mrs. Tina Barrios Z-Club participated in a rewarding year of service to its school and community. Z Club, a girls' service organization, began its 20th year with annual and traditional activities. Operation began early for the members of Z Club, making preparations for the initiation of prospective members. All prospective members attended a meeting and through a process of elimination, new members were inducted.

Twenty-seven new members were chosen and Z-Club held their annual formal initiation at the Pier Restaurant. All members banded in unity to obtain the many projects they sought to accomplish for the year.

The club held a dance along with their brother club, Interact, to help raise money for upcoming events. To also enhance funds, members sold the traditional Gobble grams before Thanksgiving and sold Christmas gift wrapping paper to toward their many worthwhile service projects. During the Christmas season, Z-Club along with their mother club, Zonta and Interact held a party at the First Methodist Church for the mentally handicapped.

The year was very prosperous and helped the club promote enthusiasm, friendship, and leadership among its members. Service along with optimism was stressed. As the year came to a close, members realized what a rewarding experience had been theirs through their service to the school and community.

When asked to describe the club, Darri Whitfield and Marci Boyas both stated, "Z Club is a good outlet for fun, being with friends, meeting new people, and helping others."

Leslie Sutton also replied by saying, "We are a group of caring girls who enjoy each other's company and like to help other people."

Students Dedicate Time and Effort for Community

With the guidance of Sertoma and sponsor, Janna Jones Brooksbank members of Serteens were given the opportunity to develop and grow into more responsible citizens.

As a division of Sertoma Serteens existed to serve their community. Mr. Whetstone from Sertoma happily stated, "The Serteen Spirit throughout the year was "SERvice TO MAnkind", which is the fundamental idea of Sertoma and Serteens. We were pleased that Serteens dedicated themselves altruistically to their community." The year began when the new members were inducted at a social in September. In November the members participated in a bike-a-thon, raising money for cystic fibrosis. At Christmas and Easter, the lives of Nicaraguan refugees were brightened by the gifts of food and clothing donated by the club members.

The spring brought exciting activities for the club. Working with the Riverfront theater was the club's most enjoyable service to their community. During the theaters Children's Series, the members sold tickets and ushered. The members also cleaned up the theater's costume loft. Hallmark events of the year were Project Park and Garfield grams. Club members had friends and community members sponsor them per hour for cleaning up Lewis Park, a three year tradition. They then gave the money to the Manatee County Deaf Program. Instead of grams on Friday, the club decided to brighten students' Monday with Garfield grams. Aside from the usual socials, gram sales, and candy sales that all clubs hold, Serteens truly dedicated themselves to community service.

Civitans Are Grand

The major goal of the Junior Civitan's was to help the retarded children in the area. By planning parties for Christmas and Valentine's Day, the club members added joy and happiness to many lives at Children's Haven in Sarasota.

With the helpful guidance and involvement of sponsor Mr. William Frank, the club members were able to complete the parties as planned. Although there were only a few Junior Civitan members, the tasks of this club were accomplished as planned. The president, Eric Ballon, was exceptionally helpful in the planning of the parties.

The members were rewarded by the self-satisfaction which came from caring and helping the youth at Children's Haven. "This club is very unique in that the members are caring for the youth at Children's Haven," Julie Bernhard stated.

Fellowship Is Great

Although, the name Fellowship of Christian Athletes may be misleading, this club is not necessarily for athletes. Several members joined to express their faith although many members were on an athletic team.

This club had several meetings throughout the year which met during Enrichment period B. The club was sponsored by Miss Kathy Cole. At these meetings members enjoyed watching movies about Professional Christian athletes. FCA was an excellent way for members, athletes or nonathletes, to have fellowship with one another.

FCA members had a few special events this past year. The club had a Christmas party at Mario Campbell's house. Also several members attended a Co-ed spring retreat. These special events were discussed at the club meetings.

Art Club Changes

The Art Club had a change of faculty sponsorship which made it a rebuilding and restructuring year. The new sponsors are dedicated art instructors Ms Smith and Mrs Echard. They hoped for a better and more stimulating Art Club in the future.

However, the club has participated in interesting activities in the world of art. Ted Phelps, a technical illustrator with Technical Art and Communication Corporation of Bradenton, spoke to the club on an enrichment day to explain the marketable and useful features of art.

The club gave students who enjoy art the opportunity to talk with each other about the various and ever changing art forms.

Moving to Win

Chess and Backgammon Club gained many new members and a new sponsor Miss Cade. The club was designed "to enhance the spirit of intellectual competition," said club vice-president Joe Levinson. Members played each other in games of Chess and Backgammon to develop strategies useful in playing these classic games.

After each game they gathered together to discuss new found strategies with each other. These sessions helped everyone become more knowledgeable in the strategies of both chess and backgammon.

Interest in these games remained high. With the possibility of acquiring computers to add another angle in the games, the Chess and Backgammon Club hoped to repeat their successes.

Aviators Are Flying High

The Aviation club took a major interest in the art of flying planes by taking daily orientation flights with hired pilot, Mr. Wallace Turbin of Jones Aviation located at the Bradenton-Sarasota Airport. The students were taught all about the different instruments on the control panels and how they worked. Some of the lucky ones were able to sit next to the pilot in the co-pilot's seat and were able to use the controls once they were in the air. When the pilot felt that the students were able to handle a plane fairly well, he allowed the students to make a pre-flight check on the plane before they took off.

The Aviation Club was also a member of the local Explorer's post and participated in yearly activities with other clubs including the sheriff's deputies. One activity was called SADD (Sunny-Land-After-Dark). This was a program to show young people how the cities operate at night. The activities included visiting the airport, Blake Medical Emergency, radio and television stations,

E.S.O. Aids In Preservation

The Endangered Species Organization was an outlet for students who were interested and concerned with the preservation of animals and nature. Their goal was to do all they possibly could to improve the environment and preserve wildlife.

During the club's enrichment periods various speakers came and talked about endangered animals, with special emphasis placed on the animals near extinction. One of the many concerns of the Endangered Species Organization was to aid in the survival of the Florida Manatee.

ESO was beneficial to those students interested in saving a major part of our surroundings. The club offered future generations assurance that something had to be done to conserve our wildlife.

Obtaining Knowledge

Beginning the year with enthusiasm, creating interest in the challenging field of science fiction was the Science Fiction Club's main purpose and goal. Under the direction of Mrs. Gaines, Science Fiction had a rewarding year of knowledge and insight.

The club's enrichment periods were spent indulging in games of Dungeons and Dragons, reading books, exchanging knowledge, and exploring the scientific frontiers of the future. Science Fiction obtained a wide selection of books and materials pertaining to the field of science fiction.

Participating in Science Fiction's club activities, members obtained knowledge about what the future holds for them and learned more about the field that they wish to further pursue.

Footlighters

Footlighters, a club to instill interest in theatre by involving the students in complete works of the theatre, worked very hard at their plans for a puppet theatre designed toward elementary students. This would enable the members to get first hand experience of creativity without actually being on the stage. They would have to rely on their abilities to create and play a character.

The officers of the club are president Scott Kemp, vice-president Dean Bowden, recording secretary Aimee Adams, corresponding secretary James Row and treasurer Tracy Kemp; and historian Jennifer Lance. Along with these officers and representatives from each grade, make up the executive board which in turn runs the club.

Mrs Peggy Gardiner, sponsor of the club, informs the members of auditions and performances and encourages them to try out to see how they can create on stage in the community.

Drama Honors

Thespians, an organization of Footlighters, spent many extra hours on dramatic productions. To see the final production all polished up and on stage made all the hours of work worthwhile.

To become a Thespian, one had to work 100 long hard hours of hammering props, painting scenery, and scrubbing down flats. All of this difficult work resulted in many rewards.

Students involved in drama gained the experience of the actual backstage production and direction of a play.

"Besides becoming a Thespian, there was a feeling of satisfaction as each person contributed to the drama productions," said one member.

SADD Cares

Students Against Drunk Drivers was formed to let others know that drinking and driving could kill a friend. Many alumni have lost their lives to drunk drivers, therefore, the SADD chapter was formed. The officers for this year were Karen Riley, as President, Vice-President, Heather Angell as Committee Chairman, Cindy Evers, and Coach Hodges, as sponsor.

At the Holiday Inn Riverfront, the club decorated a tree with gold angels, with the names of people who have been killed by drunk drivers.

Before the West Palm Beach section game, members of the club sold "Go Canes" grams. The sale was a great success. With this sale the club purchased candy suckers with a message of warning, "Only suckers drive drunk," and passed them out among the upperclassmen.

Facilities Improve

Photography club had one of its highest memberships and used their creativity to turn every picture into a work of art. The only prerequisite was the ownership of a thirty-five millimeter camera and a want to learn more about photography.

Photography proved to be a great asset to the 'Cane Echo yearbook staff as some members sacrificed their time to take early morning group and candid pictures. Members also helped in the redesigning of the darkroom in a room located on Northside. Members were able to learn some basic developing procedures and even see some filters range from neutral to tinted.

Many members were aspiring photographers and hoped to one day pursue their photographic interests. Whether members become professional photographers or just use photography as a hobby their photo album memories will be improved by this experience.

Mu Alpha Theta

Under the able guidance of Mrs. Sue Varnadore, Mu Alpha Theta completed another year of mathematics testing and examinations. Combining mathematics honor students and test takers alike, the club met regularly at never thirty to take the tests. The grading tests were sponsored by the Florida Mathematics League.

A great turnout for the club's annual car wash showed, as one member put it, 'Mu Alpha Theta is a great club. The students involved can have a good time and still take a test.' The tests challenged members' brains to combine several mathematics skills to solve one problem.

The club anticipated increasing success as many aspiring young mathematicians displayed their abilities and talents.

Scholars Honored

National Honor Society was a club honoring the academically elite. Juniors and seniors were nominated unanimously by faculty board. Once a member of NHS students were required to maintain at least a 3.5.

The National Society held many events. During the spring old members performed in the induction ceremony. The administration and teachers smiled as the candles of enlightenment burned and pledges to uphold scholarship, service and leadership were given.

Throughout the year National Honor Society excelled in all they did. Winning a great deal of recognition, members of the Brain Brawl team; Tai Cheng, Marcela Argales, Peter Szelwach, Lyn Wilkerson and Doug Weiser, agreed that year was one of excellence. All members participated in tutoring their fellow students in their problem areas. As the year ended, graduating seniors vowed to uphold their pledge in college, while the rising senior and junior members prepared to be examples in scholarship, service, and leadership next year.

Music Honor

The Music Honor Society recognized students with the exceptional ability in the vocal and instrumental departments at their annual banquet. Officers for the year included Scott Kemp as President, Bart Gifford as Vice-President, Linda Parent as Secretary, and James Forse as Sponsor.

The main purpose of the organization was to encourage high ideals of musical scholarship and character and to stress leadership and service for the school and community.

In order to achieve membership a student had to earn at least 800 points; the music award system carried a C average in all school work and be of good moral character. To receive the first award 700 points were required. The second award was a letter and membership in the Music Honor Society in which 1000 points were required. A service bar was awarded for each additional 400 points accumulated in addition to the 1000 points necessary for a letter.

Computer Club

Computer skills were stressed in the computer club sponsored by Mr. Gardner. Although computers can also be fun and enjoyable, computers can be used for practical purposes such as business skills and programming. Members did take some time out for fun but dedicated the majority of their time to learning more about the computer.

Cub members gained experience in utilizing such skills as programming in basic, word processing and other practical computer skills. The primary stress though was on programming.

Still a young club, computer club provided students with fun, learning, and experience for careers and obs after graduating from high school. The club was a great opportunity for students to improve their skills outside of the classroom and also provided them with enjoyment.

Weightlifting Club

Members of Weightlifting Club strived for discipline in 1985-86. Members worked with weights to improve strength, endurance, overall fitness and performance in the sport, which they participated in throughout the year.

The club was supervised by Coach Upton who has much experience with weightlifting through his wrestling team. The primary emphasis of the club was to promote discipline within the members allowing them to achieve their own personal goals. Whether these goals were short or long term they were the motivating factor behind the club's success.

Weightlifting Club improved strength, discipline and endurance in athletes. Other coaches appreciated students working out of season on these important areas and this club provided them with the perfect opportunity.

The Year in Review

The '85-'86 scholastic year saw many changes. It was a year of excitement, a year of giving, a year of tragedy, and a year of hope.

Peace hopes between the world's superpowers were rekindled as President Reagan and Soviet General Secretary Mikhail Gorbachev met in Geneva. The talks spurred new optimism in hopes for world peace, and Gorbachev scheduled a visit to the U.S. in 1986. Reagan planned a trip to the Soviet Union in 1987. An international spirit of giving gave way to a major fundraising song and album, We Are the World, by a super group of American artists entitled U.S.A. for Africa. A man with a heart as big as the world, Bob Geldof, sponsored the biggest fundraiser in history Live Aid. It involved two major concerts on two continents — the United States and England, played simultaneously and shown live via satellite all over the world.

Good news was not the only news. Unfortunately, terrorist attacks in Europe and the Middle East took the lives of many Americans and other tourists. These attacks prompted a bombing raid by the U.S. on Libya, with President Reagan threatening further action if the terrorism continued. The predominantly white government of South Africa declared a state of emergency in that nation, as martial law and police brutality resulted in mass race riots and much bloodshed. Natural disasters, such as the devastating earthquake in Mexico, and the massive volcano eruption in Columbia took thousands of lives.

Tragedy was also prevalent at home. The space shuttle Challenger exploded the morning of January 28, 1986, destroying the craft and taking the lives of all seven crew members. The shocked nation grieved for a week as flags flew at half-mast for seven days and memorial services were held everywhere. The grief of the nation was compared to the agony felt when President Kennedy was assassinated. The nation also grieved for 254 American servicemen who died when, on their way home, their plane crashed in Newfoundland, killing everyone on board.

Sorrow did not dominate the year, however, as Americans had much reason to celebrate. Most of the country looked forward to Herb, the creation of one of the most ingenious marketing schemes of the 80's. If you found him, as one lucky person in each of the fifty states did, you won five thousand dollars on the spot and qualified to try for a million more. The Titanic, lost for seventy-three years, was found in its aquatic grave in the Atlantic Ocean. The unbeatable Chicago Bears won the Super Bowl. And with the help of William "The Refrigerator" Perry, a 300-plus pound defensive lineman running back, brought fun back into professional football at a time of overpaid players and overpublicized drug abuse. The Kansas City Royals came back from losing the first two home games of the World Series to win by a seven to three margin.

And which Coke was the best Coke? Was it New Coke, Diet Coke, Cherry Coke, or Classic Coke? Or was it Pepsi? And Halley's Comet made its spectacular appearance in '85 & '86, truly a once in a lifetime event, as it only appears once every seventy-six years.

In the world of entertainment, Dire Straits cleaned up with their album Brothers in Arms, Bruce Springsteen's Born in the U.S.A. won big at the American Music Awards. "The Boss's" concerts sold out auditoriums and stadiums worldwide. New groups such as Simple Minds, Tears for Fears, A-Ha, Mr. Mister, and a solo effort by Sting were very popular on the music front. A band from Florida, Free Fare, gave an in-school concert with a message on peer pressure. The Color Purple, the movie from Alice Walker's Pulitzer winning novel became a classic in its own time. Other successful movies included Back to the Future, St. Elmo's Fire, Rocky IV, and White Nights. In Tampa Stadium, Rod Stewart, The Hooters, and Starship held the first stadium concert there in many years.

Locally, Hurricane Elena stirred things up enough to evacuate Bradenton Beach, Holmes Beach and Anna Maria Island and eroded some of the beaches the first weekend after school opened. The Hurricane football team won their second state championship in three years, the first title ever in 5A competition. And the old business building was torn down to make way for a new library on North Campus. The future at Manatee High looked bright. A special education house was acquired, a new library was planned for campus, and the winning tradition of Manatee sports seemed safe for years to come.

Time Keepers

Time for a unique collection. Individuals who made up the student body created an atmosphere enhanced by a variety of backgrounds, cultures, and interests. This diversity allowed exposure to all parts of society. Many precious and lasting friendships were made which combined different types and kinds of students. These differences did not stand in the way of a solidly unified school, but instead helped to increase loyalties.

The freshman class, full of curiosity, trepidation, and energy began the first of their four high school years which would ultimately lead to graduation in 1989. Freshman John Melton stated, "The step from middle school to high school was a large one, and there were many changes which took place — some were good, some were bad, but all were a part of growing up."

The sophomores, class of '88 were more accustomed to high school life, but they were still not upperclassmen. For the most part, the class of '88 began to make its presence known in the social arena as they

and their older friends reached the "magic age" where they finally received driver's licenses. This meant new freedom — no longer relying on Mom and Dad for transportation. Tenth grader, Cathie Pomar, speaking for her class, said, "Despite tougher classes, more challenges, our class made the best of it and had a great year!"

The juniors, class of '87, worked hard to raise money for the traditional junior-senior prom at the end of the year. This was, for the most part, accomplished once again by the magazine drive. "The Junior class was made up of individuals striving towards a brighter, more promising future," philosophized Marc Sicard.

Seniors — final v the time was here. After three years of being "little people" the class of '86 was at the top. This meant supremacy and senioritis. As usual the seniors enjoyed their time, and many judged this year as the best year of their young lives. Of her class Darenada Gallo said, "Once we became seniors, our class just came together and so many long-lasting friendships were formed."

Seniors

1986! The class, the time, the events and the people full of expectations and new, unique ideas. Ready for the world and the unseen challenges it brought, the graduating class set out to make their final year in high school the very best it could be. With the strong leadership of Mrs. Elizabeth Christie, the graduating class survived the dreaded onset of senioritis and went on to show outstanding spirit for Homecoming, the senior float placing second in the competition, and in the Almost-Anything-Goes contest. Leading the Seniors on the road to graduation were Mary Kate Melton, President; Christie Aebell, Vice President; Michelle Joy, Secretary and Camryn Southerland, Treasurer. Placing second in the Almost Anything Goes competition also helped lift the Senior Spirit in high school. To the joy of all, Senior Class of 1986 was blessed with a State Championship Football Title. With best wishes and with a gratifying year behind them, the Senior Class commenced into the awaiting world.

Juniors

Captured by the beauty of the midnight sky and the setting sun it turned out to be a great Senior Prom. The word prom comes from the French word promenade which means to slow dance. The prom was sponsored by the Junior class. The junior class raised money for the prom through the traditional magazine drive. The junior class was also responsible for organizing the homecoming events.

Four officers and two members from each homeroom made up the Junior class board. The class officers were Sue Bryson, president; Wendy Olson, vice president; Cheryl Hennessey, secretary and Sandi Irvine, treasurer. "We had a good core of people. They were very headed and showed great responsibility," commented Junior class sponsor Ms. Barasik. The Junior class continued to build their reputation as one of the most spirited classes by participating in many of the class activities throughout the year.

Sophomores

The Sophomore class, under head rector of Mr. Rene Mirandilla, showed much promise in many ways throughout the course of the year. They participated in many of the activities during Homecoming week.

Sophomores finished first in the "Almost Anything Goes" competition and had a great turn-out at the bonfire. Although they did not win the spirit stick at the Homecoming pep rally, Mr. Mirandilla believed that the class of 1988 had more spirit and overall participation than previous classes.

Various fund raising activities helped the students earn money for the upcoming Junior-Senior prom. The most profitable of these was a dance after a home basketball game.

Sophomore class officers — Tracy Kemp President, Allan Moates, Vice-President Anne Faris, Secretary, and Lori Wunderlich Treasurer — were very dependable, hard working, and depicted much togetherness in all activities.

The tenth grade is pretty much a resting period between the enthusiasm of Freshman and Juniors" Mr. Mirandilla stated about the overall atmosphere of the Sophomore class.

Freshmen

New to the ways of high school life, many were unsure as of what to expect or of what was expected of them. Confusion became a common feeling as many freshmen tried to find their way through the crowded and unfamiliar halls.

Class officers Kristina Weiss, president; Shannon Stewart, vice president; John Melton, treasurer, and Justin Mattina, secretary began the year with much eagerness and the year ended as a successful one. The advent of Christmas led to the selling of Christmas ornaments and wrapping paper. Proceeds from the fund-raiser went towards the freshmen dance and an adopted family, consisting of seven children. The adopt-a-family project was one to be proud of. The family was given toys, clothing, food, and bundles of love.

What appears to be traditional, the freshmen again won first place in the homecoming float parade. A computerized theme, "Bend, Fold, and Staple the Seminoles" displayed much imagination and school spirit.

As time ran out for this year, class sponsors Cecilia Smith and Judy Nixon looked forward to another great and prosperous year.

Manatee Memorial — Your Kind of Hospital.

---

A very special bond exists between Manatee Memorial Hospital and students in Manatee County. Many of you were born in our hospital, while others have been patients in Pediatrics or the Emergency Care Center.

Our quality care is rated superior by our patients. Serving as an integral element of that patient care team are graduates of Manatee County — in Nursing, Radiology, Dietary, Laboratory, Medical Records, Physical Therapy, Respiratory Care and Business Office.

If you are interested in a career in the health care field, our Personnel Department will be pleased to provide you with an insight into what you can anticipate in specialized education and job opportunities.

The image features a very faint, large watermark-like print of a person's face, likely a historical figure, centered in the background. At the top left, the words "Lively Kitchen Librarians" are printed in a small, sans-serif font. At the bottom center, the words "Cane Echo" are also printed in a similar font. The overall image has a light gray or off-white tone.

view Rams could top the Sailors of Sarasota. This looked unlikely, but the Rams shocked everyone by defeating the Sailors and thus giving Manatee a second chance at the district crown. The three-way district tie would be decided by a Kansas tie-breaker, which would be played at Riverview the following Monday.

"Never give the Hurricanes a second chance," was heard throughout the campus on Monday, and there was backbone to that statement as the 'Canes took the district title home by defeating both Sarasota and Riverview. This gave the Hurricanes a chance to advance in the playoffs and advance they did as the following week the 'Canes defeated Largo on their homefield by a 39-22 margin. The battle for the sectional title was to take place at home. West Palm Beach Forrest Hill came to Hawkins Stadium expecting a victory but the 'Canes sent them home with a resounding defeat by a 42-7 score. With only one game standing in the way between the Hurricanes and another state title chance, Coral Gables looked to spoil the 'Canes season with a victory in Hawkins Stadium. This was not to be as the Canes defeated the visitors by a 22-8 mark. This meant that the Hurricanes were once again in the state finals. This time, however, the game would be played in the friendly confines of Hawkins Stadium.

Defending state champs Pensacola Woodham came to Bradenton in hopes of securing another state title. The Hurricanes however, had a say in the outcome as they stormed onto the field and blew away the visiting Woodham team by an unbelievable score of 50-22. The outcome of the game was never in question as the 'Canes dominated the game from the opening kickoff to the final gun. No one could have predicted the ease with which the Hurricanes would win, but the victory verified to the football world that the 'Canes could play with anyone. This gave notice to the district, state, and nation that the Manatee High School Hurricanes were here to stay as a dominate force in prep football.

Dear Student Body.

Here it is in your hands The Book. The culmination of what now seems to be the hardest year's sweat and labor bound up in 320 pages of memories to keep hope, more than exceeds expectation. From now on it will be tucked away as a most prized possession.

As for The Staff — hope that all have come out this year with the knowledge of more than how to keep perfect knitting and how to put alarm systems on our white bellies. Take pride in who you have become this year.

Thank you all for everything. Christopher — you were a great friend and a great Associate Editor and best second hand boy could have asked for. Your work with the copy and your ideas really paid off as one of the creative yet sensible members of the other

Faith — what more could any teacher ask for? An Ad manager? You were a wonderful Alva — Mark was a great in the section, know I wasn't easy. Paul — wish you would have been on staff earlier. Z.C. — a great job on a lot of your pages. Rhett — great job on football, and thanks for sticking to it when you had so many problems with your hand. Rick — a great editor, great at New York City, too and being a friend would a great job with club pictures. Tamara — the most determined staff member. No matter what you had to have your pages done perfectly and they were. Constantine — even though didn't show it, really appreciated a lot of the work, would KC

you really added some life to the staff. Thanks for being a buddy and a pal and for a near perfect Senior section. Traci — Hey man what's up? What a turnaround you have made you really proved yourself. Pete — two years down on the marketing end, a great job on your Homecoming spread even though I still eat your pictures. Chris — good job on a lot of your sports day as Cherie — thanks for the help on the freshmen section and the time on on the music pages. Sharon — you always seemed to be the only one working and that included me. Kim — would a fantastic job on a lot of your pages ever Z Club. Julie — you really showed a lot of your layout, Melissa surprise! I didn't forget you. Thanks for a great section.

Then there are my three favorite freshmen although I think I know five. Michelle — you just seem to make easier, and I mean Shannon — you were often the quiet one but that had no effect on the quality of your work. Lisa — my "big sister" and I say look not for older men. Thanks for taking so many pages on at once and getting them done correctly.

Thanks also to so many other people who made the book possible. Mike Yarrow of Bryn Mawr if he were not for you there would be no yearbook. Thanks for the excellent days on page pictures and for rearranging your schedule to fit ours. Mrs. Claway — you and the copy machine are the staff's best friends. To all of my teachers especially Mrs. Stork and good ole RF who understood my need to finish deadlines foremost. Also thank you Ms. Farley for being the best teacher and for your work on deadlines. Much thanks also goes to my favorite artist, Mike Davis for the cover design.

Last in this letter but first in my heart are Ms. Krockier and my parents. Ms. Krockier thank you for allowing me to come on staff from Indiana, Seylers Potato Chip size. I'm sorry that this year did not turn out so perfect as we thought at first. I understand, I'm also sorry if I let you down this year. Mom and Dad — I'm sorry I dead lines precluded family but I knew you understood.

Finally thanks and love to all of my friends who managed to pull up with me through it all.
